AIR HERO WAITS FOR CLEAR SKY

By WILLIAM P. CARNEY
International News Service

London, June 2.—Knights of the weather today accomplished what bad weather over the Atlantic Ocean failed to do. It forced Captain Charles A. Lindbergh to postpone his proposed flight from London to Paris until tomorrow at dawn.

After waiting for more than two hours at the Kenley Aerodrome outside of London for fog and rain to clear along the London-Paris airway, Lind

Wade Would Circle Globe in 15-Day August Flight

New York, June 2 (I.N.S.)—Lieut. Leigh Wade plans a "round-the-world flight in fifteen days, he announced in an interview today.

He plans to hop off from New York before August 1 in a non-stop flight to San Francisco, thence to Honolulu and then to Midway Island, Tokio, Harbin, Manchuria, across Siberia to Moscow, then to Paris, London, Iceland, St. John's, Newfoundland, and home.

Lieut. Wade was one of the United States Army fliers who circled the globe in 1924 in 174 days.

"My purpose in making the flight is to demonstrate the practical usefulness of the airplane for commercial purposes," Wade said.

He plans to take two men with him at the start and pick up another at Tokio. He would use a twin or triple motored plane, of huge span, capable of lifting 37,000 pounds.

CLUB GIRLS TO DEATH; JAIL ONE

Scranton, Pa., June 2 (A.P.)—One man was under arrest and the police were searching for several others today after the discovery of the bodies of the two girls who had been slain along an old wagon road in the Boston settlement, near Pittston, Luzerne county.

The dead girls were identified an hour after their bodies had been discovered by a mine watchman as Jennie Monita 19;

CHAPLIN SAYS LITA GRAY LOVED ANOTHER

Los Angeles, June 2 (I. N. S.)—Charging that Lita Gray Chaplin was infatuated with an unnamed young man and denying accusations of cruelty on his part, Charles Chaplin today filed a seventy page answer to his wife's divorce complaint.

The comedian also filed a 22-page cross complaint seeking a divorce from his former leading woman.

In his answer, the film actor denied charges made by Mrs. Chaplin and refuted statements attributed to him while enroute from the couple's marriage at Empalme, Mexico, in 1924.

DOANE YACHT GUESTS SLEPT, 'ALL IN 1 CABIN'

Admission that on overnight cruises on the Sea Lure, yacht of George B. Doane, wealthy Brookline yachtsman, the party slept all in one cabin was made today in Norfolk Probate Court by Mrs. Florence Densmore, society matron.

Mrs. Densmore, wife of Doane's friend from boyhood, is named by the yachtsman's wife, Mrs. Maude Doane, as the other woman in Mrs. Doane's suit for separate support.

Several overnight cruises were made in Mrs. Doane's absence, it was testified by Mrs. Densmore, and she admitted also being at the Boston Yacht Club with Doane.

Mrs. Densmore admitted being alone with Doane on his yacht on two occasions.

Clad in a dark blue gown, with hat to match, Mrs. Densmore was perfectly at ease when she was called to the stand for examination by counsel for Mrs. Doane.

Q.—You have known Mr. Doane for some years? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you recall when you first met him? A.—The Summer of 1923, I think.

Q.—Who introduced you? A.—My

Gate Tenders Lacking in Crossing Deaths

Grade crossing hazard has been a problem in Lincoln for years. Recent substitution of twin flash signals for a crossing tender at Jones crossing on Tower road, in South Lincoln, has caused protest. In spite of the modern signal equipment townsfolk and motorists consider that the change has added to the peril of that crossing.

The road is narrow and much used. Owners of automobiles claim they became so accustomed to the warning signals displayed by the crossing tender that they dread using the crossing at night under the present arrangement.

The change was made two months

'LIZZIE' BORDEN IS DEAD; AXE DEATHS UNSOLVED

Fall River, June 2.—Miss Lizbeth A. ("Lizzie") Borden, once tried and acquitted on charge of slaying her father and stepmother in what for almost 35 years has been termed "America's greatest murder mystery," died today at her home in French street. She was 68 years old.

Until the end she kept her secret—if secret she had—of the happenings on a fateful day in August, 1892, when her stepmother and father were hacked to death, apparently with an axe.

A search of her palatial residence, where she had lived a life of seclusion since a few years after her acquittal, may be made by police authorities acting on vague rumors of "a confession."

Her lawyers declared today that they had no knowledge of any state-

LINDBERGH, who rode his flying machine across the Atlantic Ocean, 3,600 miles, in 33 hours, faster than 100 miles to the hour, helped the King of England watch the Derby. He saw Call Boy win that futile mile and a half race, in 2 minutes 34 2-5 seconds, breaking the record.

THE RACE HORSE is as much out of date as the Queen of Sheba's camel. But gambling is in the blood, stimulates all dull minds that have no imagination, delights weak wills that have no definite purpose. The English Derby has been run yearly for 144 years. It will probably be run 144 years hence.

EXCEPT for one spot, flood danger seems to be past. Mr. Hoover, and President Coolidge, who selected him to take charge of the great calamity, are to be congratulated upon the efficiency with which it has been handled. Between 600,000 and 700,000 have been rescued by government and other boats, taken to camps, sheltered, fed and restored to their lands as the waters receded.

And among the hundreds of thousands of whom many had to be rescued almost by force, refusing to believe that the water was coming, the known deaths will not exceed two or three.

ALREADY cotton and other crops are being planted behind the receding waters. Arrangements are made for any outbreaks of illness that may follow the flood.

The general health will be better, a death rate lower than before. Every one of the hundreds of thousands admitted into camps was vaccinated against

DOG BITES SCORE IN MALDEN AND EVERETT

After running wild for more than 24 hours attacking and biting a score and spreading terror through Malden and Everett, a Dobermann-Pinscher dog was captured in Hatch street, Everett, today.

The dog was caught by six men after it leaped on Joseph Crowley, aged 5, of Hatch street, biting the child on the cheek and under the left arm. The neighborhood was so aroused that the group of men quickly organized and armed with clubs, they chased the dog into a yard, where it was captured and securely tied to the fence. A few minutes later Traffic Officer J. A. Brock shot the animal.

The dog, believed to have belonged to a Malden man, first ran amuck yesterday afternoon. It first at-

He'll Bring Lindy Back Home ~ From Frenzied French Crowds ~ Faster Than Hero Rode Gas Bike

COMMANDS MEMPHIS
Vice-Admiral G. H. Burrage, U. S. N., whose flagship, the Memphis, will bring Captain Lindbergh home from France. —Acme Photos

CROWDS GO WILD FOR GLIMPSE OF YOUTH WHO FLEW ATLANTIC
An excellent idea of the frenzy with which European crowds have fought for a glimpse of the heroic young American, whose wings were first to span the Atlantic in one hop, is given in this photo of the mob in front of the American Club when Captain Lindbergh was a luncheon guest in Paris.

HIS FIRST "NON-STOP HOP" ON CYCLE
This old photo shows Lindy's first "endurance race." He rode a motorcycle from Chicago to Louisville in 1921 to join the R. O. T. C. He rode a night and a day, making the trip in 24 hours.

NEW YORK AND WASHINGTON SPEED PLANS FOR THE HOMECOMING OF "LINDY"

bergh announced his decision to wait a day.

The fact that the American was to fly a British plane, to which he was unaccustomed, is said to have caused the authorities at Kenley to urge him not to make the flight in the bad weather, with dusk apt to catch him before he arrived at Paris.

Lindbergh's final decision came when reports reached Kenley that two London-bound planes had been forced down by the fog on the French coast. With his plans all made to sail on Saturday Lindbergh agreed that it would perhaps be foolhardy for him to strike out on an unfamiliar course over the English Channel in a borrowed machine.

The fact that he had no desire to risk a borrowed plane in a forced landing seemed to have considerable weight with the American in reaching his decision.

FOGS PERIL TO AIRMEN.

The fogs over the channel are the bane of all pilots flying between Paris and London, and only the most experienced pilots who are acquainted with every landmark are willing to attempt a flight when the fogs are hanging low.

It is no unusual thing for several planes to be forced down in a fog, and oftentimes planes cruise up and down the coast for several hours, while striving to find their bearings in the mists.

Lindbergh left the American Embassy at 2:10 for Croydon, accompanied by Mrs. Houghton, wife of the United States Ambassador; Counsellor Sterling and Colonel Kenyon Joyce.

The young flier was given a greeting wherever he was recognized. He had acquired a smart new English flying suit for his journey back to Paris, consisting of a long brown leather coat and gray breeches. His baggage consisted of a small suitcase and a hat box.

Prior to leaving for Croydon, Lindbergh had lunched privately with Mrs. Houghton and the Master of Sempill, a Scottish aviator, and Air Commodore Longmore and Newall.

REGRET HIS DEPARTURE.

After attending a reception at Croydon, where civil pilots presented him with a memento, Captain Lindbergh arrived at the Kenly aerdrome outside of London at 3 o'clock and immediately began preparations for his return flight to Paris.

He was all ready to start when the weather forced him to postpone his flight.

Lindy's plane, "The Spirit of St. Louis," arrived at Gosport today, where it was crated by mechanics of the Royal Air Force.

Commander Kirkpatrick, U. S. N., and several assistants will load the plane on the cruiser Memphis here tomorrow before the ship goes to Cherbourg to pick up Lindbergh Saturday.

Captain Lindbergh's departure from London was intensely disappointing to a number of hostesses who have been besieging the Embassy for permission to have him as their guest at private parties. Among them was Lady Astor, who had already obtained Captain Lindbergh's tentative promise to attend her dance at her home in St. James square tonight.

During the morning Lindbergh conferred with embassy officials regarding the details of his passage on the American cruiser Memphis, which will carry both himself and his monoplane home. He approved the plans that had been made and gave instructions for taking the plane aboard the warship.

Captain Lindbergh was much relieved to find he was going to have the airplane on the same ship. He desires to superintend, personally, the reassembling of the machine at Washington in preparation for his flight to New York.

France Will Again Honor "Lindy" on His Farewell Visit

Paris, June 2 (A.P.)—Captain Lindbergh, or "Lanbeer" as the French pronounce his name again took the centre of the Parisian stage today.

The newspapers were full of the proposed return to France from England and the arrangements for his departure for home on the cruiser Memphis Saturday.

He was scheduled to hop back to Paris today, but postponed the trip because of bad weather.

The newspapers had two new kindly caricatures of him and a number of old photos, including one of a wrecked plane from which he escaped by means of a parachute at Bloomington, Ill.

Lindy's farewell visit to Paris was planned to be incognito, but if the French have their way he is not going to succeed in hiding his light under a bushel.

The City Council of Le Mans is pressing Ambassador Herrick to have Lindbergh come and unveil a monument at Auvours Field, commemorating Wilbur Wright's first flight over Europe, but it is not likely he will find time, as he will have all he can do to attend to business matters before sailing.

Cherbourg is thrilled over the prospect of saying farewell to the aviator on behalf of France.

There will be an air escort of French naval seaplanes, as the Memphis steams out of the harbor Saturday and nothing is being

Lindy Has Flown 6,555 Miles Since Leaving Coast

New York, June 2 (A.P.).—Captain Charles A. Lindbergh has flown approximately 6,555 miles in his monoplane, the "Spirit of St. Louis," since he left San Diego, Cal., on May 10.

Exclusive of his test flights in San Diego and New York and his trip over Paris before starting for Brussels, Lindbergh's hops were: San Diego to St. Louis, 1,609 miles; St. Louis to New York, 900 miles; New York to Paris, 3,610 miles; Paris to Brussels, 175 miles; Brussels to London, 200 miles; London to Gosport, 70 miles.

and Edith Fonzo, 20, both of Wilkes-Barre.

The man taken into custody by Pittston and State police described himself as Carmel Marranda, 28, of Pittston, owner of an automobile found near the bodies. Marranda had reported his car as stolen last night.

Each girl had been shot through the head and strangled and one of them had also been struck over the head with a blunt instrument.

It was apparent the girls had waged a desperate struggle against their attackers. The body of one was nude and her torn clothing was found some distance away. The other body was fully clothed, but the garments had been pulled and torn before the victim gave up the fight.

Discovery of the bodies was made by a man watching an abandoned mine. He saw an automobile parked in a mine cave hole. A short distance from the car he saw the body of the Monita girl and 75 yards away came upon the second body.

ment or will that might have been left by the woman.

Before, during and after the trial of Miss Borden, the case aroused more discussion and argument perhaps than any other murder case before or since that time. The fact that it ended officially as an unsolved mystery, although suspicion of the accused never entirely subsided, only served to make the case more celebrated.

INHERITED $250,000.

Through the death of her father, Miss Borden inherited approximately $250,000 and this increased with the years. She and her sister, who inherited a like sum, quarreled and separated, and the sister is living in Providence.

Following her acquittal, Miss Borden closed the house in which the atrocious murders were committed and took up residence in the house in French street where her only companions were a maid and many pets. She occasionally appeared in public but no longer mingled, as had been her custom, with old friends and neighbors.

The murders were committed August 4, 1892. Mrs. Borden being slain in an upstairs room and her husband, Andrew J. Borden, in a lower front room. The weapon was never found.

MYSTERY UNSOLVED.

While there were many who believed Miss Borden guilty, there were others who said it was inconceivable that a woman could have killed so cruelly.

And yet, in order to commit the crimes, an outsider would have had to sneak into the house, kill Mrs. Borden, remain safely in hiding for about an hour, then beat her husband silently to death and flee unnoticed by Miss Borden, her neighbors or chance passersby. Nothing was stolen from the house.

Miss Borden was in the house on the forenoon in question, but she declared that she made one short trip outside, to go into the barn-loft. This story as a defense was vigorously attacked by the State, but the jury acquitted her on the first ballot.

A year ago she underwent an operation from which she never fully recovered.

Aged Author Dies in Dire Want After He Pawns King's Gift

Los Angeles, June 2 (A.P.).—Death of Francis Grierson, 70, an author, in desperate poverty, was disclosed when arrangements were completed for his funeral today. He died Tuesday by his piano. Aid was being given Grierson at the time of his death by the Authors' League, Waldemar Tonner, who had been his secretary for 41 years, added a pittance by giving French lessons.

In addition to his writing, Grierson had some distinction in music, art and philosophy. He had lectured at numerous universities and had a wide acquaintance in Europe and the United States. A few days before his death he pawned a watch presented to him by the King of England.

The young men had an argument and went below on the ship, tied up at Charlestown, to settle it, police say. After a time Abdullah came racing up again, looking for a doctor. He is locked up at the Charlestown police station.

husband introduced us. We were then staying at Buzzard's Bay.

Q.—How far did you live from Captain Doane's yacht, the Sea Lure? A.—A mile and a half, perhaps more.

Q.—You went on the Sea Lure at that time with him? A.—Yes.

Q.—You have been to the Boston Yacht Club on various occasions with Captain Doane, haven't you? A.—I have.

WERE SEEKING A BOAT.

Q.—What was the occasion of your first meeting with Captain Doane? A.—Mr. Densmore and I were looking for a boat for ourselves and accidentally met Mr. Doane at the boatyard. He had a boat for sale. We looked at it, but didn't want it, and then he asked us if we would like to see his new boat, the Sea Lure. We said we would, and did.

Q.—Do you recall having had some talk with the Doanes regarding property at Buzzard's Bay? A.—There was talk at that time.

Q.—Were you and your husband to have a half interest in the property and the Doanes a half interest? A.—I don't know as it was a half interest. We had no definite property in mind.

AT BUZZARD'S BAY.

Q.—How many time did you meet Captain Doane during the balance of 1922? A.—Perhaps three or four.

Q.—Some of those meetings were at your place at Buzzard's Bay? A.—I believe so.

A question relative to Captain Doane's making presents of liquor to Mrs. Densmore's husband was excluded on objection.

Q.—During Christmas of 1922 were gifts made to you by Captain Doane or his wife? A.—I think he gave gifts to the children and Mrs. Doane gave me a gift.

Q.—You were very friendly with Mrs. Doane at that time, were you not? A.—Friendly, yes.

Q.—Did Mr. Doane take you and your husband and the boy on a cruise when Mrs. Doane was not present? A.—He did one year, I think in the Fall of 1922.

"ALL IN ONE CABIN."

Q.—Are there sleeping accommodations on the Sea Lure? A.—There are.

Q.—Does it contain separate rooms? A.—No.

Q.—Simply bunks? A.—Yes.

Q.—Is it one large cabin? A.—Yes.

Q.—How many bunks are there? A.—Four full-size and one small one.

The lure of the open sea meant not a thing to Doane and Mrs. Densmore when they were aboard the yacht on a June day in 1926, according to testimony of a detective.

Joseph J. Wolfe, superintendent of the detective agency bearing his name, testified he observed Doane and Mrs. Densmore go aboard the yacht and remain there for almost three hours while the boat was tied to its buoy 50 yards off the Boston Yacht Club, South Boston.

TRIED TO FOLLOW THEM.

He also testified he attempted, on another occasion, with Mrs. Doane, the pursuing wife, to be a seagoing detective but with little success.

This was in August, 1926, and, according to Wolfe, he and an assistant, with Mrs. Doane, hired a boat in South Boston and went out on the tossing waters in search of the Sea Lure which had weighed anchor an hour or so earlier and had headed for sea.

Hunt as he would, he could not find the yacht on which Doane and Mrs. Densmore had set sail, and finally the disappointed hunters reached South Boston again to find Doane's car still where he had parked it early in the afternoon.

Before setting out in the boat, Wolfe testified, he had watched the Sea Lure casting out to sea.

Wolfe testified he made many observations of the Sea Lure through a pair of field glasses from the front veranda of Mrs. Harriet Whitmore's home in Columbia road, South Boston.

'DRIVEN FROM HOME' SHE GETS PARIS DIVORCE

Paris, June 2 (A.P.).—Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, 2nd, the former Virginia Fair, was granted a decree of divorce today.

The judgment says Mr. Vanderbilt drove his wife from their conjugal domicile and showed himself excessively cold toward her.

Mrs. Vanderbilt is given the custody of their son, William K. Vanderbilt, 3rd. The judgment makes no mention of any financial settlement, the plaintiff not having asked for alimony.

The marriage of William Kissam Vanderbilt to Virginia Fair, in 1899, was one of the biggest society events of its day. The couple took a leading part in New York's society, but for many years prior to the beginning of the divorce proceedings had not lived together.

Mrs. Vanderbilt's divorce plea and a counter by her husband were filed with the Paris court on April 28, the wife charging that she had been refused access to their domicile in Paris, and the husband pleading his wife's coldness.

Mr Vanderbilt raised no objection to his wife's petition for custody of their son during the informal pleadings, and the court granted her request. No application was made for alimony.

Friends of the couple have stated that, following the divorce, Mrs. Vanderbilt might apply to the Catholic Ecclesiastical Courts for nullification of the marriage on the ground that she was subjected to undue pressure by her parents in the marriage.

This was the ground on which the Holy Roman Rota last year declared null and void the marriage of the Duke of Marlborough and the former Consuelo Vanderbilt.

WILSON 'HIDES' IN GREATEST SHAKEUP

Four police captains, including one considered among the most valuable officers in the Boston department, are scheduled for the "toboggan," it was learned from unofficial sources today.

In the most drastic shakeup the department has ever known, Police Commissioner Wilson has already transferred 125 men from station to station without consulting the captains and with a secrecy which kept the move in the dark until official announcement.

Commissioner Wilson was in "hiding" today. It was reported he had left town on a fishing trip. He was not at his home or at headquarters and all efforts to reach him failed. It was learned the four captains slated for transfer are aware of the coming move.

Divisions to be affected by the proposed transfers are among the most difficult in the department. One in particular is captained by a veteran officer whose value to the department in his precinct has been highly praised.

The peculiar part of the transfers made in the lower ranks is that the men transferred have been considered the best trained and most efficient policemen in their divisions. None of the transfers has taken on the nature of so-called "punishmen," however.

They were made without the advice of precinct captains and, in at least one case, over the protest of a captain.

From the Back Bay and South End stations officers who have been noted for their prowess in capturing criminals and for their knowledge of every inhabitant of their districts have already been transferred.

The transfer of superior officers is of similar nature. Captains who know their precints and have perfect records are slated to go.

MEDFORD BOARD IS SCORED BY GRAND JURY

No criminal action will be taken as a result of the investigation of school building contracts in Medford by the Middlesex Grand Jury, but the Medford Schoolhouse Commission and the architect in charge of the construction of the schools were scathingly arraigned in the report of the Grand Jury, returned today.

Specifically, the Grand Jury investigated the building of the Swan Junior High School and the Hobbs grade school in Medford.

The report points out that in the construction of the Swan school the contractors, with consent of the architect, were permitted to use 175,000 second-hand bricks and second-grade lumber, while first-class material had been specified, without saving the city a single penny.

At the Hobbs School the architect permitted the sub-contractor to substitute lead flashings for the 16-ounce flashings specified and as a result the building, although comparatively new, already carries over 200 patches where the flashings have broken, says the report.

Michael A. Dyr was the architect of both buildings and according to the Grand Jury report he was to receive 6 per cent. of the total cost of the buildings as his fees.

In explaining that it did not favor criminal indictments, the report states "we do not feel that the evidence justifies the return of indictments and the placing of the parties on trial for criminality." Recourse to the civil courts, however, is recommended to the people of Medford.

What Happens When 3 Bodies Occupy One Space

GENTLE HORSE PREVENTS MORE SERIOUS CATASTROPHE

This is what happened when a rear wheel left its axle on a motor truck in Massachusetts avenue, near Upham's Corner, Dorchester, today. The truck and two other vehicles, one horse-drawn, attempted to occupy the space of a single vehicle, with the resultant snarl. Had the horse not been gentle and waited patiently for things to be untangled, there might have been disaster. No one was hurt.

A temperamental rear wheel that parted company with its regular assembly of motor vehicle in Massachusetts avenue, near Upham's Corner, Dorchester, slowed up traffic in that cobbled, bumpy strand today almost to "jam" proportions.

It was at the morning peak, when the town-bound stream of traffic was at its fullest, and the resultant piling up of this and two other vehicles brought about a situation that was somewhat annoying if one happened to be in a hurry.

A pair of horses, driven by Stanley Webster of Cambridge, was parked at the curb, near the Edison plant, as a truck, driven by Arthur M. Colsenta and headed in town, came up.

Just as this auto truck was about to swing out around the parked wagon, another auto truck, rolling in the opposite direction, and operated by William P. Ford of Cambridge, threw a wheel.

The sag of this truck, when the free end of the axle let down, tossed it into the city-bound truck and this truck, in turn, was bumped into the horse and wagon.

The horse was much disconcerted, but he didn't run away. (He was a horse of another color.)

Well—nobody was hurt as regards damage physically, and the tangle and congestion was cleared away after fifteen minutes or so.

SAFE AT TUFTS IS TOO TOUGH FOR CRACKERS

The Tufts College safe was too much for crackamen, who broke into the college administration building early today. The safe is in the office of E. E. Shepard, bursar, in Ballou Hall, the administration building on the campus.

When the janitor opened the building today he found the combination dial, handle and hinges scattered about, but the safe was intact.

The thieves gained entrance by forcing a rear window. Once inside there was nothing to prevent their visiting every office in the building. They apparently worked for hours over the strong box, which is small but of sturdy construction.

When the combination was knocked from the safe the bolts holding the door were automatically locked and this automatic lock was beyond the skill of the thieves.

According to Bursar Shepard, only a small amount of money was in the safe. When large amounts are placed there a watchman is on duty.

The thieves ransacked several desks but got nothing of value.

KANSAS LAYMAN PICKED FOR BAPTIST PRESIDENT

Chicago, June 2 (A.P.).—W. C. Coleman, of Wichita, Kans., a layman, today was nominated for president of the Baptist Northern Convention.

Mr. Coleman is president of the Coleman Lamp Company. He was nominated to succeed the Rev. J. W Brougher, of Oakland, California.

Too Much 'Joy' in Cod Liver Oil Cocktails

Alfred, Me., June 2 (A.P.).—Cod liver oil cocktails a la Biddeford, are not medicine, a Supreme Court jury decided, but it took them all night to reach a verdict.

The issue was raised in the State's case against Louis Pelletier, a Biddeford druggist. The State claimed that he had been doing a land office business by selling a patent medicine. When a purchaser pushed a straw down through a strata of codliver oil and honey he got two drinks of rum. The cost was $1. Deputy sheriffs testified that a straw was served with their purchase when they asked for a substitute for beef, wine and iron. The defence declared the deputies asked for a cough cure.

The jury retired last night and returned a sealed verdict this morning.

The druggist was tried on six single sales of liquor. He was convicted.

Brides, Be Warned!

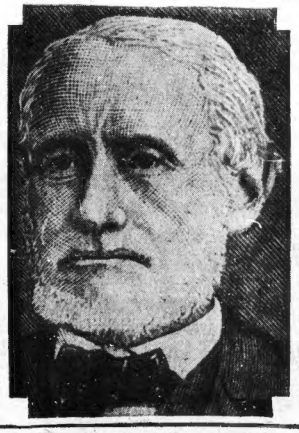
WHEN LIZZIE BORDEN FACED DEATH TRIAL!

(Typical newspaper illustration of '92.)

IN MYSTERY TRIAL OF 1893

Miss "Lizzie" Borden of Fall River as she appeared when arrested in 1892 charged with slaying her father and her stepmother.



ONE OF THE SLAYER'S VICTIMS

Andrew J. Borden, father of "Lizzie," hacked to death an hour after his wife had been similarly slain.

WANTS DIVORCE BUT WILL GIVE UP HER CHILD

Although asking a divorce, Mrs. Anna F. Field of Cambridge street, Cambridge, today requested that her child be placed in the custody of her husband's mother, with whom the husband is living.

Commenting on this request, which he called unusual in view of the fact that Mrs. Field charged cruelty, desertion, intoxication and neglect, Judge Leggat in Middlesex Probate Court said he would take the whole case under consideration.

Mrs. Field declared she and her husband had agreed his mother, Mrs. Rose Shaw, should have custody. The husband, Daniel L. Field, lives with his mother in Otis street, Cambridge.

It was brought out that Field pleaded guilty to striking his wife. In her testigony she declared he blackened her eye and knocked out four teeth, then left her for three years, but returned to surrender to police.

JERSEY GOVERNOR GLAD OF BAY STATE AIR LINK

Felicitations on the inauguration of airplane service between Boston, New York and New Jersey were received today by Governor Fuller from Governor A. Harry Moore of New Jersey.

"You may be sure," Governor Moore wrote, "that New Jersey rejoices with you in establishment of the first permanent regular air passenger service between Massachusetts, New York and New Jersey."

39 ROOKIES ON STATE POLICE FORCE

Thirty-nine new members of the uniformed branch of the State police force were sworn in today at the State House by Secretary Frederic W. Cook. After the ceremony the rookies were herded to the Commonwealth armory. They will undergo three months' of training.

The administering of the oath to the new officers was witnessed by Commissioner of Public Safety Alfred F. Foore and Captain Charles T. Bourpre, head of the patrol.

The names of the recruits are:

F. F. Hanson, New Bedford; James J. Flin, East Cambridge; John J. Canavan, Somerville; Victor W. White, Taunton; John F. Tallo, Fall River; Henry H. Tyler, Dudley; Milton Smith, Brockton; Michael J. Sullivan, Worcester.

GATE TENDERS REAL NEED AT CROSSINGS

ago. The little yellow shanty is looked up. Twin signals have been set up on each side of the crossing to warn those approaching. Lights flash day and night from the time a train is within a quarter mile or more of the crossing. It is a two-track Fitchburg line and many trains pass there in a day.

One criticism of the new beacons is that they are apt to be mistaken for a silent policeman by motorists unfamiliar with the neighborhood. It is contended that the grade is so highly hasardous that the crossing tender should be retained with the new flash signals.

Tower Road branches to the right off the main highway through Lincoln which passes a dangerous crossing just above. This crossing is protected by gates operated by a towerman who also operates the gates on a smaller parallel road nearby.

Critics complain that the railroad's chief concern seems to be economy rather than to meet the new and perplexing problems due to the tremendous increase of motor traffic. The one cry heard everywhere is that warning signals both night and day should be made more conspicuous, even on grade crossings protected by gates. This would insure against accidents on foggy or stormy nights, it is held.

Waltham also has its grade crossing problems, but they are far less acute than those in Lincoln. The three grade crossings in the Waton City are protected by gates and crossing tenders day and night, but despite this accidents happen and there has long been a crying demand to abolish them.

This is particularly true of Moody street crossing. Traffic is heavy there as it is on Main street. Business men claim some relief should be granted. The Beaver Brook crossing is considered hazardous to strangers at night in wet or slippery weather, especially on the down grade heading for Boston.

NEED LARGER LIGHTS.

Study of these crossings tends to support the general demand that warning lights be made larger and more conspicuous even where gates and crossing tenders are used. In other words motorists approaching any railroad crossing, whether in a town or city or on a country road, feel as if they are entitled to an early and forcible a warning as it is possible to furnish them.

Hasting's Crossing in Weston adjoining the little railroad station, is equipped with modern signals but no gates. There have been accidents and near-accidents there. A horse was struck by a locomotive some months ago and the driver of an auto saw his car grazed though he was not injured. Both ware supposed to be familiar with the road and crossing.

The tracks are concealed by a building on the right approaching the crossing. The automatic warning signal is one of the latest and most approved caterillar light signals and dropping banjo disc. Signals of this type might well be used on the New Haven system on crossings south of Boston. They would reduce hasard on many of the Cape Cod roads.

The Boston Evening American is anxious to reduce this peril as much as possible and calls on the public to help.

If you know of any grade crossing in your neighborhood or elsewhere which you consider unnecessarily hasardous, or if you have had a personal experience, kindly forward such information to the Grade Crossing Editor of the Boston Evening American, No. 5 Winthrop square, Boston.

DARQUE ENDS CANADIAN "GOOD WILL" INVASION

Ottawa, Ont., June 2 (A.P.).—Major Herbert A. Dargue wrote finis on the Canadian "invasion" of his Pan-American goodwill flight today when he again took the air for Syracuse and Schenectady, N. Y.

The second goodwill plane which suffered a smashed landing gear and crippled wing yesterday will be freighted back to its army base. Captain R. B. Hoyt, its pilot, will go by train to Syracuse, where he will again join the flight in another plane.

SEEKS OWNER OF LOST PIGEON AT LUDLOW, VT.

Asking Boston police to find the owner of a lost carrier pigeon, a letter from C. Ellen Dunbar of Ludlow, Vt., was received at headquarters today.

Mrs. Dunbar writes that the pigeon has been flying about her home for a week. A message is tied to one leg and an identification band to the other. The pigeon feels with the poultry, but has evaded all attempts to capture it.

EXPERT TESTED IN MAGUIRE 'FORGERIES'

A handwriting expert was put to a test today in Middlesex Probate Court, where counsel for the estate of the late William F. Davis, former head of the J. W. Maguire Company, combatted claims that Davis forged Mrs. Maguire's signature as endorser of notes totaling more than $700,000.

The Harvard Trust Company is seeking to recover from the estate of Davis, who was a suicide, $33,581.47 on a note which supposedly bore the endorsement of Mrs. Maguire, widow of one of Boston's biggest automobile distributors.

Having testifie dthat in his opinion Davis wrote also the Mrs. Maguire's signature on the note given the trust company, Wilbur F. Turner, the expert, was shown several signatures on various papers and asked to determine as a test which were written by Mrs. Maguire and which were written by other persons.

After a recess of court, in which he was given time to study the signatures, Turner declared that he believed two were genuine, while the others were "doubtful." Mrs. Maguire was to be called to the witness stand later to tell of these signatures and to prove or disprove the accuracy of the expert's opinion.

The Harvard Trust Company note is in the nature of a test case. If the endorsement is decided to be a forgery in relation to this note and possibly for other notes to several other banks, Mrs. Maguire has testified she endorsed no notes for Davis.

SOMERVILLE'S NEW RUM SQUAD WINS FIRST CASE

Somerville's newly appointed liquor squad, Sergt. Charles J. Sharry and Patrolmen Baker, J. F. Donovan and O'Brien, secured their first conviction in Somerville District Court today, when Guiseppe Longini of Hunting street, Cambridge, paid a fine of $150 for making an illegal sale of liquor on South street.

Maybe It Pays to Have Your Car Watched

If this be an argument for overtime parking, make the most of it and save an overcoat.

One man parked his automobile for four hours in Tremont street today—four hours being illegal—and Traffic Officer William Jackson was keeping a disturbed but anticipatory and eagle eye out for his return.

Bernard Stanton, twenty-one, of a vague address, is alleged to have stepped right into the situation and to have snatched an overcoat from the back seat. When he observed the policeman start for him, Stanton bolted down West street into Mason street, but was clutched after he had run less than 100 yards.

tacked Bernice Albert, aged 3, of Mills street, Malden. Motorcycle Officer Massie of the Medford force was attacked and bitten.

Mrs. Martha Lyman of Parker street, Malden, was attacked as she was walking along the street, the dog biting her arm. The next Malden victim was Rose Salante of Bryant street. The dog bit her under the left arm and on the left wrist as she tried to ward off the animal's attacks.

The head of the dog has been sent to the State veterinarian to determine whether or not the animal had the rabies.

MANSLAUGHTER WARRANT DENIED IN GIRL'S DEATH

After hearing the evidence of the government, Assistant Clerk James J. Mullen, jr., in the Charlestown Municipal Court, today, refused to grant a warrant charging manslaughter against Paul T. Malloy of Partridge street, Everett, who was operating an automobile on Chelsea street, near Hudson street, Charlestown, which struck down 6-yearold Sylvia Corella of No. 6 Mt. Vernon street, Charlestown, inflicting injuries which resulted in her death later at the Haymarket Square Relief Hospital.

U. S. MARINES IN CHINA ORDERED TO ACT QUICKLY

Peking, June 2 (I.N.S.).—A sharp demand that Japan recall the 2,000 troops landed at Tsingtao was made in a note sent to Tokio today by Wellington Koo, acting Foreign Minister of the Peking government. The note declared the landing violates China's sovereignty and treaty rights.

Washington, June 2 (I.N.S.).—The United States is prepared to act with exceeding swiftness in coping with the new crisis in China.

Plans were drawn up weeks ago and based on the well-grounded belief that despite dissension in the Cantonese ranks the Nationalist movement was by no means dead.

WILL GUARD LEGATION.

The movement of two regiments of Marines from Shanghai to Tientsin is wholly in accord with American policy, it was explained at the State Department.

The Marines will be used to protect the American nationals now concentrated in the North China city and to guard the legation when and if it is moved. The regiments sailing from Shanghai today will be followed within the week by other Marines, it was said.

The program mapped out by this government does not call for any last ditch defense of Peking, such as has been suggested in London and Tokyo, in the event local government in that part of China collapses.

The American forces are under strict orders to remain neutral as between the various contending Chinese factions and to take no part in the fighting excepting in the defense of American citizens.

Foremost among the considerations of this government is that its nationals shall be protected and that there must be no repetition of the Nanking affair of March 24.

Being of the opinion that Americans can best be protected at Tientsin or Shanghai, rather than at Peking, the government has already prepared to evacuate the legation in the latter city to a port city.

100 P. C. IN FAVOR OF HUB AUDITORIUM

Boston newspaper publishers and editors today assured Mayor Nichols that they stood back of him "100 per cent. strong" in his effort to secure an immense auditorium for Boston.

The publishers and editors were the guests of the Mayor at a luncheon at the new Parker House. The Mayor arranged the luncheon with the idea of learning the sentiment of the Boston newspapers toward the project, and he returned to his desk well satisfied that he had found enthusiastic champions.

Every newspaper in Boston was represented and each paper, through its spokesman, assured the Mayor of support. The newspapermen then voted unanimously to favor the building of a municipally owned auditorium which would also be erected as a memorial to World War veterans.

The plan, as outlined by the Mayor, is to have an auditorium seating from 15,000 to 20,000 persons at an estimated cost of from three to five million dollars.

Colonel Frank Knox, regional director of the Hearst newspapers in New England, assured the Mayor that the newspapers he represented were behind the auditorium project with enthusiasm. He declared there was a national insistence to come to New England and that with its new hotels and with an auditorium, no city in the country could compete with Boston in securing visitors. We will support the program 100 per cent. and do all we can to make it successful," said Colonel Knox.

Robert L. O'Brien, editor of the Boston Herald, declared that an auditorium, such as is proposed, would do more to put Boston on the map than anything else. He urged that it be made large enough to accommodate the largest national conventions.

George S. Mandell of the Boston Transcript pledged the support of that paper. Edward J. Dunn, city editor of the Boston Post, spoke for that paper; Harry W. Poor pledged the support of the Boston Globe and Paul S. Deland promised the support of the Christian Science Monitor.

A. H. Marchant of the Boston Post pledged not only the support of his paper, but of the Boston Rotary Club, of which he is president.

Among the other guests at the luncheon were A. C. Ratshesky, chairman of the tercentenary celebration committee, who urged that the city strive to make the coming celebration a monumental success.

Other guests of the Mayor included James W. Reardon, Edward R. Mahoney, Mortimer Priest, George W. Diamond, Kent Perkins, J. E. Whiting, Thomas Carens, F. J. Bullard, William G. Brigham, Henry T. Claus, Frank C. Bowker, Harold F. Wheeler, John K. Gowan, E. and Frank H. Cushman.

JAPAN EAGER TO CUT NAVY, SAYS OKADA

Tokyo, June 2 (A.P.).—Japan's acceptance of President Coolidge's invitation to the tripartite conference on the limitation of naval armaments was inspired by a genuine love of peace and a sincere wish to co-operate constructively with the other powers, said Admiral Okada, Minister of the Navy, in an exclusive statement to the Associated Press today.

He emphasized that his country was ready to reduce its navy "to the minimum of defense requirements," and with this end in view would engage in a frank discussion with the delegates of the United States and Great Britain.

NO FINANCIAL REASONS.

"If anybody thinks we simply jumped at this opportunity to limit armaments for financial reasons," he declared, "he has never learned to appreciate our true feelings.

"Our naval institutions, actually, far from being of aggressive proportions, was never intended to extend beyond the measure justified by defense. Even without this armament parley, we never thought of [illegible]

"So we are looking forward to the forthcoming conference as something in the way of a formal occasion to confirm this fundamental idea."

APPROVES U. S. ENVOYS.

Admiral Okada said he desired to take the opportunity to shatter the "absurd notion," reported in recent dispatches from America, that Japan was not satisfied with the personnel of the American delegation to the conference.

"Such impressions," he said, "are absolutely erroneous. Any persons duly accredited by the United States are to us the United States personified and nothing else."

HOP TO HAWAII FROM COAST IS NEAR

San Francisco, June 2. — A non-stop flight attempt from the Pacific Coast to the Hawaiian Islands, 2,460 miles away, was believed near at hand today.

Disregarding the first of August date fixed for opening of competition in the $25,000 race sponsored by James Dole, at least four pilots were reported today preparing to take off as soon as their planes are conditioned. Prizes independent of the Dole award and intense eagerness to be first to make the flight may bring the attempts into the immediate future.

Reports that E. L. Doheny had offered $45,000 for a non-stop flight from Los Angeles to Hawaii were denied by representatives of the oil magnate. Los Angeles business men several days ago offered $45,000 for a flight from Los Angeles to Japan.

Local pilots who have made overtures to get planes for the transpacific flight are Major Livingston Irving, a former member of Nungesser's squadron in France; Clare Vance, airmail pilot; Ernest Smith, Pacific air transport flier, and Lieutenant Eric Nelson, round-the-world [illegible]

R. I. HOME DESTROYED AS WATER FAILS FIREMEN

Woonsocket, R. I., June 2 (A.P.).—Lack of water and the bursting of a line of hose spelled the doom of a two-family house on Mendon road early today when fire that started in the kitchen on the lower floor spread through the structure and drove the occupants to the street in their night clothing.

The loss was estimated at $12,000. Leo Gartan, son of the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Sterlo Gartan, discovered the fire and was injured in an attempt to re-enter the building and was taken to the hospital.

BELGIAN ENVOY QUITS POST

Washington, June 2 (A.P.).—Baron de Cartier de Marchienne, the Belgian Ambassador, has resigned his post.

He has notified the State Department of his intention to return to Belgium, but reasons for his resignation were not disclosed at the department.

The Ambassador became the ranking member of the diplomatic corps with the resignation of the Spanish Ambassador, Sir Esme Howard, the British Ambassador, succeeds the Belgian as dean of the corps.

Hartford, Conn., June 2 (A.P.).—Forty years of activity during which time due to an infirmity he was confined to his room was ended today for Professor Charles Howard Young, eminent linguist and scholar, who is dead at 74.

The accident which incapacitated Professor Young for life, occurred in his 33rd year when he fell from a cliff. He never was able to walk again. During the forty years that followed he left his room twice. The first time was last January when a fire on the floor below necessitated his removal for safety.

Monday, Professor Young left the room for a second time. This time his destination was the hospital, where hematophilia, which had so long held him prisoner, finally overcame his indomitable spirit.

Professor Young was conversant with twelve languages and eight dialects. His long incarceration was devoted to teaching these and to writing.

In 1923 he started "The Twelve Conquerors and Twelve Communes of History," intended to begin with Alexander and describe the personalities and foibles of the conquerors. The work was designed as a vent for his mind rather than for publication.

WM. C. PROUT SERIOUSLY ILL

William C. Prout, president of the American Olympic Association and for years an outstanding figure among Knights of Columbus, is seriously ill at his home, No. 982 Beacon street.

The breakdown came on the heels of a relapse which followed an operation he underwent some time ago. Doctors said he return to his office duties came too soon, hence the relapse.

He was once national president of the Amateur Athletic Union and for 20 years was prominently identified with fraternal and civic organizations. Attorney Prout was a candidate for district attorney at the last election.

WALSH SPEAKS TO LAW GRADS

Tremont Temple was crowded today when the annual commencement exercises of the Suffolk Law School took place with United States Senator David I. Walsh as the commencement orator. There were 150 members in the graduating class who received degrees.

The graduates, in caps and gowns, entered the auditorium to the strains of "Triumphal March." Joseph F. O'Connell, vice-president of the trustees, presided.

Among speakers were James M. Curley, former Mayor of Boston; Thomas J. Boynton, president of the board of trustees; Prof. A. Chesley York, who spoke for the faculty; Congressman John J. Douglas and Dean Gleason L. Archer, founder of the school.

The class day exercises were held earlier in the day in the school auditorium.

Relatives and friends of the graduating students were welcomed by the class president, William Augustine Welch. The salutatory was given by Arthur W. Hanson, honor student.

Wyman Parkhurst Fiske delivered the class history; Charles J. Walsh, the class poem; Richard I. Gottlieb, the class prophecy; William R. Gilman, the class oration, and Daniel J. Murphy read the class will.

Paul C. Wallace, vice-president of the 1st class, presented the national colors to Charles J. McCue, president of the 1926 class, and John B. Hynes presented the class gift. The valedictory was delivered by Harry Rose, highest ranking student of the graduating class.

Balloons Testing Wind in Boston for Aviators

If you see a balloon or two drift across the sky some morning or afternoon, don't become fearful over the grief of some child whose hand you may believe to have opened carelessly.

They are little balloons released twice a day—at 7 a. m. and 4 p. m.—by the meteorological officer of the United States Weather Bureau from the roof of the Army Base in South Boston and are used in charting wind direction and velocity at graduated altitudes.

It is part of "chain gun" through which winds are charted all over the country, principally for the benefit of aviators.

W. E. HORTON IS MADE GENERAL

It was formerly Colonel William E Horton, quartermaster of the First Corps Area at Boston, but now it is Brigadier-General William E. Horton, assistant Quartermaster-General, U. S. A., at Washington.

The former head of the "Q. M." at the Army Base in South Boston has been elevated. He was at the Boston base until a few weeks ago.

General Horton, before becoming an army man, was a civil engineer and then a lawyer at Washington. He was quartermaster in the advanced section at Neut Chateau during the war and has received 16 medals from various countries for his efficient war service.

U. S. DEBT CUT MORE THAN BILLION IN YEAR

Washington, June 2 (I.N.S.).—The national debt was reduced $1,190,000,000 in the year ended May 31, the Treasury announced today. The total debt on May 31 was $18,573,000,000.

BETTY ALDEN'S SOCIETY COMMENT

MRS. FISHER NESMITH MRS. PARKER MAREAN MRS. ARTHUR POPE MRS. WARREN MacPEHRSON

INTERESTED IN BENEFIT FETE

Here is a Cambridge foursome vitally interested in the success of tomorrow' s fete at Longfellow House for the Cambridge Neighborhood House.

Posed Specially for the Boston Evening American

THE UNIVERSITY CITY'S YOUNGER, AS WELL AS OLDER, SET is determined that tomorrow's Fete at the Longfellow estate shall be a huge success. Of course, the place itself is an enormous drawing card—home of the dearly beloved poet Longfellow—for all the countryside will throng to see at close range the fine old landmark out in Cambridge's aristocratic Brattle street. Of material attractions, too, there's full and overflowing measure.

TO THE USUAL FETE DAY MONEY-RAISER HAVE BEEN ADDED some extra special ways of getting a heavy purse for Cambridge Neighborhood House, the beneficiary of the day. Mrs. Harold O. Read is an energetic and skilled leader. And of course Cambridge fair ones are all enrolled to help at this or that. Mesdames Fisher Nesmith, Parker Marean, Warren MacPherson and Arthur Pope have important duties, and the younger set, including Miss Faith Lovell, Miss Caroline Read, Miss Jean Read, Miss Elizabeth and Miss Katherine Cram, will be on hand. The hours are from two in the afternoon until nearly midnight.

AFTER THE MATHEWS-WING WEDDING PARTY HAS GONE decorously through the "rehearsal" this evening (preliminary to Saturday's ceremonial) everyone adjourns to the Dedham Club for a merrymaking supper. Miss Mary Mathews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Mathews of Dedham, walks up the aisle of hallowed St. Paul's on Saturday preceded by no less than a quartet of sisters—a distinction not given to every bride.

THE MISSES ANNE, BETTY, GRACE AND OLIVIA MATHEWS are in the list, and as there are but six in all the bride very wisely dispenses with the usual bride's luncheon to her attendants. For other preliminary festivities there have been a number of small dinners, and two luncheons, all helping to make the "before-the-wedding" period as hectic as can be. J. Howard Wing, bridegroom-elect, got through his "farewell" last week.

GOWNS MOST CHARMING AND SUMMERY ARE IN THE finishing stage for June's early weddings. And without exception the bride-elect chooses for her attending bevy those lovely delicate pastels that are the very essence of June itself. Miss Juliet Greene, daughter of Mrs. Bertram W. B. Greene, came home from Europe just in time for final fittings of the pretty frock she wears Saturday in attendance on Miss Jane Noble, when that petite and dark-eyed girl becomes Mrs. Francis Fiske in the tiny church at Smith's Point, Manchester.

THE GREENES HAVE BEEN AWAY FOR THE BETTER PART OF a year, spending some three months in Italy and more than that period in Paris, where they have many friends in high French and Anglo-American sets. Miss Greene has been out two or three Winters, a charming girl of the May School clique, greatly popular in her set Mrs. and Miss Greene will be in town until July, when they go to Maine for the mid-Summer months, somewhere in the Boothbay region, where Miss Juliet will be perfectly in her element, swimming and sailing.

MISS ELIZABETH JANE HAMILTON BRADY AND FREDERICK STRONG MOSELEY, JR., of respectively Gotham's and Boston's upper circles, are to be launched on the matrimonial sea via much brilliant entertaining. Miss Brady's paternal kinfolk, the Nicholas Frederic Bradys, precede the nuptials on June 23 by a night-before dinner dance at their Manhasset place, "Inisfade." The Moseley connection going over from Boston for the celebrations will be most imposing.

BOTH YOUNG PEOPLE ARE WELL DOWERED WITH THIS world's goods. Miss Brady is the heiress daughter of James Cox Brady, and Mr. Moseley's pater, Frederick S. Moseley, a financial leader of the town, possessing one of those fortunes that runs into seven or more numerals. I understand that Miss Helen Moseley is to be in the bridal group for the ceremonial to be celebrated at Gladstone, N. J.

MARSHALS FOR NORTHEASTERN

Faculty and class marshals for Northeastern University commencement in the Boston Opera House on June 29 were announced today.

These marshals will have charge of the seating of 3,000 persons and it will be a difficult task for many times that number will endeavor to get seats to see the Northeastern graduates presented with their sheepskins.

Professor John B. Fuggley, registrar of the university, will be chief marshal, and his assistant will be Professor Harold W. Melvin of the English department, who is director of student activities.

Other faculty marshals will be Professor Holley S. Winkfield, electrical engineering department, advisor to 1927; Professor Alfred J. Ferretti of the mechanical engineering department, advisor to 1928; Professor Frederick N. Holmes of the English department, advisor to 1930; Professor Emil A. Granstorff of civil engineering department.

The school of engineering seniors have elected Arthur N. Rae, Jamaica Plain, class marshal, while the school of business administration seniors have chosen Daniel J. Conway, Shrewsbury.

FRANCE HONORS E. A. FILENE

J. C. Joseph Flamand, French consul in Boston, presented the Cross of the Legion of Honor to A. Lincoln Filene. The French government recently bestowed the Cross on Mr. Filene, and the presentation was made at an informal dinner given by Mr. Filene to a group of friends.

Edward A. Filene, president, and Edward J. Frost, vice-president of William Filene's Sons Company, were guests of honor. The others attending were: Walter Brown, Henry S. Dennison, John H. Fahey, Paul E. Fitzpatrick, Francis G. Goodale, Dr. Paul H. Hanus, Dudley Harmon, Dean [illegible] W. Holmes, Edwin C. Johnson, Charles H. Jones, Henry P. Kendall, John S. Lawrence, J. Franklin McElwain, George R. Nutter, Dr. Frank S. Ober, Bernard J. Rothwell and Edwin S. Smith. The dinner was held in the Dickens room of the Parker House.

EDUCATORS DENY EMPHATICALLY "COLLEGE SUICIDE WAVE"

SAY YOUTH IS NORMAL AS EVER

Drinking Habit More Often Brought to Than Acquired at Universities

This is the second of two articles on "Modern Youth" as viewed by New England college presidents.

By HERBERT CARYL
(Copyright, 1927, by International News Service.)

College presidents of New England today "spiked" the talk of a "student suicide wave."

"There is no such thing except in the press," declared President Clifton D. Gray, Bates College, Lewiston, Me.

"Morbidity and moroseness among students are as rare as radium."

President Ralph Earle, Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Worcester, stated:

"The students certainly are not morbid or morose, and I do not believe that the so-called 'suicide wave' is other than an imaginary wave worked up to apply to colleges."

Clifton D. Gray Frank P. Speare

President Frank Palmer Speare, Northeastern University, Boston, said:

"We note no morbid or morose tendencies among the students at Northeastern, due perhaps to the fact that we keep them so busily employed during the hours of the day, and so carefully guided and influenced during their hours of leisure that the excesses attributed to some student bodies, the use of liquor, gambling and other immoral practices are not in evidence and our men and women seem to live a normal and constructive life."

President Paul Dwight Moody, Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vt., said:

"If analyzed, the supposed suicide wave would be found to be a matter of the various suicides being treated in such a way as to appear to be a 'wave' but it is probably no greater than at any time in past years. I have not found students particularly morose."

That drinking in colleges is rampant via the flask route was denied by President Gray at Bates College.

"Drinking in college, like every other evil, in nine cases out of ten begins before the student arrives," he said.

ENTERING BUSINESS.

"At Bowdoin College," said President Kenneth C. M. Sills, "we find an increasingly large number of our graduates going into business, therefore we do not feel that Bowdoin is turning out too many professional men in proportion to men in other fields of endeavor. In the early years of the college a very large percentage of graduates went into the so-called learned professions. Now an equally large percentage seems to be going into business."

President Speare of Northeastern said:

"The interest in higher education in this country has increased tremendously during the last decade, due in some measure, at least, to the fact that during the war educated men forged rapidly to the front and gained positions of prominence and usefulness both in military and civilian affairs.

"It is worth while to graduate men and women from our colleges, but the most important question is, what becomes of them as a result of the years devoted to education and whether the time and money thus employed are well expended.

"Education, therefore, whether general or specific, broadens the horizon, awakens the powers of analysis and imagination, and greatly augments any native powers which one may possess and makes them more available and effective.

"It is true that there are at the present time more professional men and women being graduated from the colleges, universities and schools than ever before, but the pendulum seems to be swinging somewhat the other way. The popularity of the schools of liberal arts is reawakening and many professional schools are adding to their programs cultural and liberal courses which produce well trained, cultured minds."

MARY LYGO SAW HAPPINESS IN SUICIDE

Chicago, June 2 (A.P.).—A letter written over the signature of Mary Lygo in 1921 before an attempt to take her own life here and published by Chicago newspapers, was addressed to Mrs. M. Goodall, Los Angeles. It was signed "Your Own Baby Irene." Irene Goodall, former Follies beauty, who died in Hollywood today after swallowing poison Tuesday, also was known as Mary Lygo.

The letter was found in the girl's room. It read:

"Darling Mother—I am so sorry if I bring you sorrow, but I will not if you will only stop and think I am not happy and therefore seek rest. Some of us are not made as strong as others. We must be pitied instead of censured. Don't blame Gordon. Gordon C. Thorne, member of a wealthy Chicago family which she sued for breach of promise). He isn't to blame. It is his companions. His mother suffers as much as I do.

"Mother, please understand and don't be sorrowful, as I shall be happy when I have no more earthly cares. Everything I own is yours, with my love. Your only baby, Irene."

MANY GIFTS AT 35TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Sheehan of No. 465 Quincy street, Meeting House Hill, Dorchester, were given a surprise at their home by family and friends on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary. Their nine grandchildren, four of them the sons and daughters of Mr and Mrs. John J. Sheehan, 2nd, of Fort Washington, N. Y., were present.

William J. Grover represented the boys of the Brimmer School and there was a delegation from the American Legion Auxiliary of the Francis G. Kane Post. They received many gifts.

'L' PROFITS IN MAY $125,000

Wiping out a $121,412 deficiency in the $1,000,000 reserve fund the Boston Elevated for the month of May today reported receipts of $125,000 in excess of cost of service.

For the corresponding period a year ago only $57,000 profit was reported.

The increase is attributed to tight control over operating expenses and extensive use of labor saving equipment.

COOLIDGE SENDS REGRETS TO MRS. J. B. O'DONNELL

Washington, June 2 (A.P.).—A message of regret on the death of John B. O'Donnell, former mayor of Northampton, Mass., was sent today by President Coolidge to Mrs. O'Donnell.

"Report has just reached me that your distinguished husband, the Hon. John B. O'Donnell, has passed away," the President, who is a former mayor of Northampton, said. "Although he goes full of years, honored and respected above the usual experience of men, his present services were so valuable that his going seemed untimely. He was a benefactor of his city which he had served in the high office of Mayor, a distinguished member of the bar, and a judge of dignity and humanity. Mrs. Coolidge joins me in the expression of our deep, personal sympathy."

OPPOSES LEASE BY N. Y. CENTRAL

Washington, June 2 (A.P.).—Rejection of the proposal of the New York Central Railroad to lease the Lake Michigan Central and Big Four was recommended to the Interstate Commerce Commission today by an examiner who gathered evidence in the case.

Although the New York Central owns an overwhelming proportion of the stock of both of the smaller lines, Ralph R. Molster, the examiner, urged that the commission disapprove the entire project on the ground that it did not provide for the maintenance of short line railroads which operate in the New York Central territory.

LE GALLIENNE IN AIRY COMEDY

From the heavier and more dramatic work of Gregorio and Maria Martinez Sierra, the New York Civic Repertory players, filling a week's engagement at the Hollis Theatre, last night, turned to the light and airy comedy "La Locandiera" (The Mistress of the Inn), by Carlo Goldoni.

Goldoni was a prolific writer of the Eighteenth century, and was the founder of modern Italian comedy. In "La Locandiera" he set out to present three acts of light, unadulterated comedy, without a serious line from the first curtain to the last. He succeeded.

It was a critical audience that filled every available seat in the Hollis, to pass judgment on the work of Miss Eva Le Gallienne and her associates, and the performance added another triumph to those that the New York Repertory players have already scored in Boston on their first tour of the country.

SIMPLE PLOT.

The plot of "La Locandiera" was simplicity itself. Three noblemen, one impecunious and two of wealth, found themselves together under the roof of an inn operated by an extremely vivacious, good-looking, flirtatious young lady. The ancient Marquis of no estates and the Count of ladened purse fall violently in love with the inn-keeper. The Cavalier, a blustery chap, declares he hates all women and he means it. The inn-keeper spurns the love of her two admirers but accepts the gifts of the wealthy one, but she sets her cap for the Cavalier, who spurns her. Human nature in Italy in the Eighteenth century was no different than that in America in the Twentieth century. The Cavalier finally falls noisily in love, only to be rejected. The inn-keeper marries her faithful young servant.

ADORABLE AS MISTRESS.

Goldoni was the forerunner of the modern movie scenario writer. He believed that people didn't want to think when they were being entertained, so the audible thoughts of the actors kept the audience fully informed at all times as to what was transpiring, without any strain on the mental faculties of the audience.

Miss Le Gallienne as the mistress of the inn was adorable. Egon Brecher as the Cavalier, who finally falls in love, had a difficult part, which he was equal to. Sayre Crawley as the impecunious nobleman presented a fine piece of character delineation, while Paul Leyssac as the wealthy count, and Robert F. Ross as the fortunate servant continued the good impressions they have already made on Boston audiences. Barlowe Borland, Josephin Hutchinson and Beatrice De Neergaard had parts which added to the completeness and smoothness of the piece. By and large it was an evening of light entertainment, admirably acted.

WHAT'S SO RARE AS A RARE DAY?

There was a heavy frost in northern New England during the night. The mercury went to 50 above in Boston on the first "rare" day of June.

Fair skies prevail throughout the northern belt of the country from the eastern slope of the Rockies to the Atlantic coast, and are expected to brighten this section for another day, at least.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Fair tonight and Friday; not much change in temperature; gentle, variable winds.

SMALL BLAZE AT THE HOTEL STATLER

Starting in the kitchen, fire at the Hotel Statler early today worked its way through the partitions to the second and third floor on the Columbus avenue side. The hotel management asked for a squad of police from the Back Bay station to aid in calming guests. The fire was quickly brought under control and few guests were aware of the trouble.

My MONEY Talks, SLANDER is Silent

This is the famous Challenge Check—a good check on a great bank—now withdrawn, but always ready.

The paid "Prejudiced Interests" are sulking in their tents—Their work was done in the night—My challenge was made in the pitiless glare of publicity, published in the big Boston newspapers that talk to all New England—Did I hear from my traducers?—Not a yip—But believe me, I heard from my friends and customers—They wrote me from all over New England—Commending me for my stand in defense of truth and fair play. A big business man must at times make business enemies—His competitors do not love him—Sometimes they go too far to injure him—Keep within the bounds of truth, gentlemen—And remember your scripture—"Let ye who are without sin cast the first stone."

FRANCE PLANS NEW HONORS FOR LINDY ON HIS FAREWELL VISIT

HERO OF OCEAN FLIGHT DUE BACK HOME ON JUNE 11

PLAN GREAT SEND-OFF.

Captain Lindbergh is expected to fly from Paris to Cherbourg. When he arrives he will be taken through flowered streets to a municipal reception at the City Hall, where there will be a procession to the docks, where, after being greeted by the Chamber of Commerce, he will be made the "patron" of the local airfield.

Gaily decorated tugs and other craft in the harbor will let loose their sirens as a final farewell while the flier proceeds to the Memphis aboard a cutter.

"Lindy" to Get Greatest Welcome Ever Given Civilian

Washington, June 2 (A.P.).—Captain Charles A. Lindbergh is to set foot again on his native soil at noon on Saturday, June 11, debarking at the Washington Navy Yard from the cruiser Memphis, which is under way to arrive here at that day and hour.

After receiving from the hands of President Coolidge the first Distinguished Flying Cross ever to be struck off and being elaborately entertained here for a day or two, the daring pilot will fly to New York in the Spirit of St. Louis, thus completing his fourney in the "ship" in which he started from Roosevelt Field on his epoch making flight to Paris.

This much of the return program for Lindbergh was announced by high officials of the navy and the army. Immediately afterwards the committee on the reception of the flier organized and laid plans for perhaps the most elaborate reception ever tendered a private citizen in the national capital.

FLEET TO GREET HIM.

Besides a huge fleet of navy and army planes, the Memphis will be met at sea by either the dirigible Los Angeles or a smaller non-rigid airship of the naval forces. A squadron of twelve aeroplanes will meet the cruiser 100 miles from the Virginia Capes late on Friday, June 10 and escort it to Cheesneake Bay.

There a squadron of nine seaplanes and two others of six seaplanes each will pick up the craft and accompany her to Washington. About an equal number of army planes also will be in the escort. The Los Angeles or the non-rigid airship will keep pace with the Memphis as the steams slowly up the Potomac.

HONOR FROM COOLIDGE.

Lindbergh will be met at the Navy Yard here by a reception committee and will head a parade from there to the Washington monument grounds, where President Coolidge will receive him and pin on him the distinguished flying cross, the design for which has been approved hastily by the Fine Arts Commission and the Board of Army and Navy Officers for the occasion.

The design was submitted by Miss Elizabeth Will and A. E. Dubois, employes in the office of the army quartermaster general.

While Lindbergh is being received by the President, whose house guest he will be while in Washington, "The Spirit of St. Louis" will be removed from the Memphis at the Navy Yard and reassembled for the New York hop.

Major-General Patrick, chief of the army air service, told the reception committee today that the plane probably could be put into perfect flying condition within twenty-four hours after the Memphis docks.

That would enable Lindbergh to leave here on Sunday, June 12, for New York, but the time of his departure still is to be determined.

WON'T FLY INTO CAPITAL.

A suggestion at the meeting of the reception committee that Lindbergh leave the Memphis at Hampton Roads and fly to Washington in a seaplane was disapproved by Rear Admiral Moffett, chief of the navy air service, who pointed out that in case of bad weather, this part of the program could not be carried out satisfactorily.

Gotham to Give "Lindy" "Greatest Welcome of All"

New York, June 2 (A.P.).—The great welcome arranged by New York for Captain Charles A. Lindbergh will be carried out despite Washington's victory in being the first city to greet the nation's hero on his return to America.

All the elaborate plans for what is intended to be one of the greatest receptions in the history of the metropolis will stand, Grover A. Whalen, chairman of the Mayor's reception committee said after a telephone conversation with secretary of War Davis in Washington.

Lindbergh is due to arrive in Washington on the cruiser Memphis, June 11 and after being received by the President will fly from Washington to Miller Field, Staten Island, June 14.

The airman will cross the harbor on the city tug Macom, through a lane of welcoming steamers and beneath a squadron of airplanes. From the Battery he will be taken in a parade up Broadway and receive an official welcome at City Hall.

Then will follow a big parade up Fifth avenue to Central Park, where Governor Smith will decorate him with the State medal for valor.

Captain Lindbergh will remain in New York three days, attending receptions and dinners, and on Friday, June 17, he will fly to St. Louis, arriving there that afternoon. From then on his itinerary will be a constant round of honors in various parts of the country.

Lindbergh in a transatlantic radiotelephone conversation from London to New York with R. R. Blythe, one of the backers of his flight, said:

"I consider it a great honor to have received a personal invitation from President Coolidge to attend the reception in Washington.

"I will be aboard the cruiser Memphis and will land where she reaches port. I cannot, however, overlook what the people of New York did for me before I started."

He said he planned to fly the Spirit of St. Louis from Washington to New York as soon as the reception at the capital is ended.

Published rumors that the Washington reception had been planned at an eleventh hour "to put one over on Tammany's home town" and in which connection the name of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt was mentioned, met with a denial by the Colonel that he had any part in the Washington reception plan.

"I have never had anything to do with the plans for Captain Lindbergh's reception," Colonel Roosevelt said, "nor have I requested him to attend any function or dinner whatsoever. I did not suggest to the President that he be asked to Washington."

St. Louis D. A. R. to Pay Honor to Lindbergh

St. Louis, June 2 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution today announced it would dedicate a memorial chair in honor of Captain Charles A. Lindbergh in Constitution Hall, the new $2,000,000 national D. A. R. headquarters at Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Howard Bailey, Chapter regent, wrote Captain Lindbergh: "We deem it an honor, to the name we bear, to be able to immortalize one who has so signally brought fame to our city and nation, and yet has taught the world a lesson modesty and unselfishness, combined with rare courage and spirit."

Ohio Legion Wants "Lindy" as Guest at Convention

Columbus, O., June 2 (A.P.).—Governor Donahey today called Myron T. Herrick, United States ambassador to France, asking him to invite Charles A. Lindbergh, transAtlantic flier, to visit Canton, Ohio, during the State American Legion convention, July 25 and 26. The cable was sent "on behalf of Ohio" and the Governor said if the invitation is accepted he will confer some special honor upon the flier to be determined later.

EAST BOSTON MEN ACCUSED OF SMUGGLING

Frank Norton and Frank Sacco, both of East Boston, were arrested at their homes today by Deputy U. S. Marshal James Fraser. They have been indicted in Vermont by a Federal Grand Jury on the charge of smuggling a huge quantity of Canadian ale over the border last October near Holland, Vt.

When arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Janney they waived examination, expressed the desire to return to Vermont to face trial and were held without bail.

ARMY DOCTOR KILLED IN PLANE ON SICK CALL

Bordeaux, France, June 2 (A.P.).—Major Picquee, French army surgeon, who used an airplane to make a sick call, was killed today when the plane fell in flames.

The major used the plane to go to a garrison to treat the sick wife of an officer. He ordered the woman removed to a hospital by a second airplane and it was while on the return trip that his plane crashed. The pilot was injured.

Lindy Is Offered Special Train for Western Tour

Washington, June 2 (A.P.).—Whether Charles A. Lindbergh will go West on a special train after his reception in the East will depend on the advice given him after he arrives in this country.

Recently the Association of Railway Executives offered the aviator special train facilities comparable to those accorded Queen Marie and other distinguished foreign visitors.

If accepted, the offer would permit Lindbergh to travel westward on a special train by paying the nominal fare of $1.

Today the association received the following reply from the flier: "Sincere thanks your congratulations. Am referring your offer to the American committee."

LINDY 'SHOULD CLEAN UP NOW,' SAYS TRUDY

New York, June 2.—Gertrude Ederle thinks Captain Charles A. Lindbergh should capitalize his fame—in a discreet and dignified manner, of course, and not wait too long to do it.

For fame is fleeting, according to "Trudy." Although she hastened to add she believes Lindbergh's name will live forever.

She was a national idol, too, less than a year ago. Today she is doing a two-day in vaudeville on small town circuits trying to make a little money out of her achievement of August 6 last when she swam the English Channel in fourteen hours and a half. She was acclaimed by New York's millions when she came home, just as Lindbergh will be honored shortly, but the public soon forgot her—not entirely, but to a very great extent.

"What I did of course does not compare with Captain Lindbergh's remarkable feat," she said. "Mine was nothing much more than a sporting proposition, while his will be a help to humanity through the advancement of commercial aviation."

No Zoo to Take Back Laughs Lindy, as He Quits England

London, June 2 (A.P.).—"I'll have to come back and do my sightseeing later," Captain Lindbergh said as he took leave of the friends at the American embassy who have entertained him so cordially during his stay in the British Capital.

To questioners he said that much of his morning had been taken up with assorting gifts and his correspondence, which has become mountainous.

"No, I didn't receive any animals in the lot so far as I know—not even a black cat," he replied laughingly to inquiries as to whether he would have a zoo to take back with him on the Memphis.

MOTHER WILL GREET LINDY AT CAPITAL

Detroit, June 2 (A.P.)—Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh will go to Washington to greet her son Charles when he arrives there June 11. A private car has been offered the mother by the Michigan Central Railroad for the trip East.

Lindy's Daring Air Stunts Cripple French Ace's Plane

Paris, June 2.—Major Pinsard, French military pilot, who loaned Captain Lindbergh his pursuit plane last Friday, made a forced landing in the same plane today. Neither the pilot nor the plane was damaged.

Major Pinsard landed after he had experienced motor trouble. He declined to discuss the accident, but his friends said that the stunts which Lindbergh had performed in the plane had probably strained the engine, causing it to fail in today's flight.

Among the stunts Lindbergh performed with Pinsard's plane was to nose dive with his engine running at full speed. Pilots here state that in planes such as Pinsard's it is essential to throttle the motor down when nose diving, otherwise the motor is strained and there is great danger of a serious crash.

SACCO BOARD WILL DELAY EXECUTION

was believed at the State House today that Sacco and Vanzetti will undoubtedly escape the electric chair temporarily.

Governor Fuller today continued his personal investigation of the Sacco-Vanzetti case by interviewing several trial witnesses, relaxing not a bit in his inquiry in spite of his appointment of an advisory board of investigation.

One defence witness was among the several questioned by the Governor in his private office, where Lieutenant-Governor Allen and Attorney Joseph Wiggin sat with him as usual.

Following the conference with Witness O'Neil, the Governor saw two more defense witnesses, Miss Lena Allen and Harry Kurlansky, both of Quincy.

Due to the appointment of the advisory board of three—President Lowell of Harvard, President Stratton of M. I. T., and former Probate Judge Robert Grant—Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti will escape the chair for a time at least, it is believed.

Celestino Madeiros, under sentence to die the week of July 10, as are Sacco and Vanzetti, also unquestionably will escape the chair for the fourth time. His "confession" to the "Sacco-Vanzetti crime" will doubtless come in for study by the special reviewers.

Sympathizers with the two men whose case has attracted world-wide attention are elated today, not only by the fact that the Governor decided to appoint a committee, but also because of the calibre of the men he chose for the work.

The Governor leaves a bit in the air just what the functions of the board will be. With his announcement, the Governor said merely: "This committee will sit independently of the Governor, and the Governor will continue his own study of the case as heretofore."

The Governor received few communications on the case today.

The Working Women's Labor League in Vancouver, B. C., demand the Governor repudiate all actions against Sacco and Vanzetti and grant unconditional liberty "to these two heroes of the working class." The Parkhead Socialist Sunday school of the Labor Institute, Glasgow, urge a retrial.

James Garnett, writing from Philadelphia, says:

"The most unusual courtesy which prompted the acknowledgement of the receipt of my recent communication in re Sacco and Vanzetti demands the evidence of my appreciation.

"I wrote upon impulse, not even a citizen of Massachusetts, though my forbears were, and the Governor's office, bedevilled beyond endurance, stops to tell me that my note was received."

Sir Thomas Lipton, who called on Governor Fuller today but found him out at luncheon, seized an opportunity to comment on the Sacco case to reporters, expressing confidence in the Governor's judgment and saying he believes the final decision would be acceptable "to all good citizens."

OUSTED DRY HEAD "WAS TREATED LIKE RAG DOLL"

Newark, N. J., June 2 (I.N.S.).—Bitterly resentful of what he terms being "treated like a rag doll," Colonel Ira L. Reeves, formerly prohibition administrator for New Jersey, declared today that he expected "considerable reaction" from his letter to General Lincoln C. Andrews, former prohibition enforcement chief.

In his letter to General Andrews, Colonel Reeves characterized his removal from office as a "most contemptible proceeding," and stated it was his belief he had incurred the enmity of the brewing concern because of his refusal to grant the concern a license to manufacture cereal beverages.

SWISS COMMITTEE IN MOVE TO AID SACCO

Geneva, June 2 (A.P.).—A petition asking for a new trial or liberation of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti has been launched by the Swiss section of the European committee which is striving to save the men from death in Massachusetts.

In appealing for signatures the committee declares the "long martyrdoms of the convicted men has provoked worldwide indignation" and asserts that their innocence of the murder charges against them has been clearly established. The petition also declares "their electrocution would be a crime against justice and humanity."

STORM KILLS 40 PERSONS IN HOLLAND, BELGIUM

Amsterdam, Holland, June 2 (A.P.).—Forty persons were killed, 150 injured and enormous damage done by the cyclonic storm that swept over parts of Holland and Belgium. Besides three villages devastated—Weede, Greenho and Delden—nine others were extensively damaged.

In the Brussels-Antwerp district of Belgium there was much damage, especially to hothouses, for which the section is famous. The wind tore roofs from houses, uprooted trees and a number of buildings weakened by the storm, collapsed.

WOONSOCKET FIGHTS TO KEEP BIG MILL

Woonsocket, R. I., June 2 (A.P.).—The citizens' committee of fifteen, together with a committee of Social Mills' employes and Superintendent Andrew B. Cavanaugh of the mill, will confer with President Frederick L. Jenckes of the Manville-Jenckes Company tomorrow at Pawtucket in a final effort to save the factory for Woonsocket.

The move is the result of a petition signed by 400 of the operatives requesting that the plant be kept in operation and saying they are willing to work a 54-hour week if necessary.

HUB BUYER MAKES 'FLYING' TRIP

WOMAN SETS NEW ENGLAND RECORD

Miss Louise Amsbury, buyer of coats and dresses for Houghton & Dutton Co. flew to New York in search of the latest material for her department and flew back with the goods the next day. Photo shows Erving P. Morse, president of Houghton & Dutton Co. Miss Amsbury and Paul F. Terrill, sales manager, standing near the big plane at the Boston airport.

WOMAN BUYER FLIES TO N. Y.

Another chapter has been written in the history of aviation and department store management. For the first time in the history of New England a woman has made a trip to and from market by airplane to buy merchandise for a department store.

Tuesday night, at 7 o'clock, Louise Amsbury, a buyer of coats and dresses at Houghton & Dutton Company, boarded the giant Fokker mail plane of the Colonial Air Transport Co., at the East Boston Airport, and at 10 minutes past 7 was on her way to New York City in search of merchandise for patrons of this great department store.

Miss Amsbury arrived back the next morning by airplane, leaving the Brunswick, N. J., flying field at 5.30, arriving in East Boston at 9 o'clock. She was met at the East Boston airport by Erving P. Morse, president of Houghton & Dutton Company, and Paul F. Terrill, sales and publicity manager. The boxes of coats and dresses were then transferred from the big plane to one of the store's motor trucks, rushed to Boston, and placed on sale at 11 o'clock.

As the pioneer department store of New England, Houghton & Dutton Company officials said they were proud to be pioneers in sending a buyer to and from New York by airplane.

A short distance out of Boston, one of the thrills of the trip was furnished when they ran into an air pocket. Miss Amsbury described this sensation as similar to that of the bumping over a rough road in an automobile.

'KING BEN' RAID GOWN HANDY

St. Joseph, Mich., June 2 (A.P.)—Benjamin Purnell, head of the House of David, was prepared to flee from the law disguised in a "Mother Hubbard" gown and a red wig, Esther Hansel testified today in the State's receivership suit against the colony.

She said Benjamin bought the wig for use "in case of emergency." The "Mother Hubbard" and a corset were borrowed from a woman colonist, according to the witness.

Mrs. Hansel said Purnell never used the disguise, but kept it ready in case officers raided the colony.

The witness told of a boat trip when she charged Purnell accompanied a score or more girls who slept under canvas wagon covers on the deck. When she objected to the situation Benjamin threatened to throw her overboard, she stated.

Her father was mate of the boat and her brother in the crew, but she informed neither of the threat, she testified.

RUSSIAN OFFICIALS QUIT ENGLAND; SAIL FOR HOME

London, June 2 (I.N.S.).—Russian officials began their trek from London today, following the break in diplomatic and trade relations with Great Britain. Thirty-five sailed on the steamer Vonahar for Russian ports.

The former Russian Charge, M. Rosenoltz, and members of the trade delegation will leave tomorrow. The foreign office today sent a note to the Russian legation announcing that all members of the staffs of the embassy and trade delegations would be required to leave England and that other Russians remaining in England would be placed under special regulations.

PILGRIMS ARE COMING AGAIN

A "second pilgrimage to Plymouth Rock" will take place, it was announced today, for the Colonial Missionary Society of London.

The organization is largely made up of several hundred members of the Congregational Church of England.

A. G. Sleep, secretary of the society, is in charge of the arrangements, according to Matthew H. Workman, London passenger agent for the White Star line, now in Boston.

The 21,000-ton cabin ship Cedric is to be the modern Mayflower, according to present plans.

Leaving Liverpool a year from today, the party will reach Boston a week later, to be formally received by Congregationalists of New England.

A week's sight-seeing, banquets and meetings will follow visits to Plymouth Rock and Pilgrim Memorial monument at the tip of Cape Cod.

The party will leave on Bunker Hill Day, arriving at their homes in a few days more than three weeks.

HERO IS THROUGH WITH MAIDS IN DISTRESS

Joseph Busby, 18-year-old Sir Galahad of True street, Everett, today asked to be propped up on his cot in the Malden City Hospital long enough to write his resignation from that goodly band of two-fisted heroes who since the days of King Arthur have ever been eager to "ride abroad redressing human wrong."

Busby was clad in no shining armor, he rode no prancing steed—in fact he was on foot, about midnight, walking along Bell Rock street, Malden, when he saw a youth and a girl engaged in a controversy in the shadow of a large tree.

Suddenly the youth hauled off and punched the girl on the chin. She screamed for help. Busby's hero blood responded to the call. The girl fled. Busby and the girl's assailant fought. A car pulled up and two men jumped out and joined in the fight.

Busby awoke in the Malden hospital. His injuries are not serious.

GIRL DISPLAYS 'RELIC,' DEFIES BISHOP

Hartford, Ct., June 2 (A P.)—Defying the authority of the Right Rev. John J. Nilan, bishop of the Hartford diocese of the Roman Catholic Church, who forbade display of two splinters of wood which are claimed to be from the original Holy Cross, Miss Theresa Moser, 18 yearold crippled girl, and her father, Fred Moser of Jersey City, N J., today exhibited the relic at the home of a non-Catholic, for a second time, and at the homes of several Catholics.

VIOLATION OF LAW.

Following denunciation of the display by Bishop Nilan and Monsignor Thomas S. Duggan, vicar-general, who said Catholics should refuse to patronize the display, which he termed "contrary to canon law and a disgraceful procedure," two Catholic families who had previously arranged for showings refused to allow Miss Moser to enter their homes. The relic was shown yesterday, instead, at the home of Miss Lulian L. Houghtaling, a scientific astrologist and a non-Catholic.

Monsignor William H. Flynn, chancellor of the diocese, said that the persistence of Miss Moser in showing the relic was against all laws of the church. He said the church was not bothered by the display and would take no action. "It is doubtful," he said, "that the girl is a Catholic. Certainly, if she is a sincere Catholic, she would not consider any such action as hers.

ACT "EXCLUDES HER."

"Therefore, I would even deny the supposition that she is a Catholic if by any little chance she is one however, her present action certainly and automatically excludes her."

Miss Moser came to Connecticut to display the relic in the home of a Meriden woman who had answered a newspaper advertisement announcing that a crucifix with miraculous powers could be rented by the sick for $1 a week.

WHITE RUSSIANS EXECUTED BY SOVIETS NEAR MINSK

London, June 2 (A P.)—Reuter's Warsaw correspondent says reports from a seemingly reliable source assert that serious trouble is being experienced in the Minsk region of White Russia. Soviet officials from numerous villages and smaller towns arrived at Minsk, demanding the dispatch of disciplinary detachments to enforce the government's prestige and arrest leaders of an anti-Soviet movement, it is declared.

More than 200 inhabitants of one village were taken to Minsk by a detachment and imprisoned, and several executions occurred on the spot, the reports state.

LYNN MAN GOES ON TRIAL JUNE 8 IN WIFE-KILLING

Salem, June 2 (A P.)—The trial of John Frizone charged with the murder of his wife, Josephine, at their home, 236 Chatham street, Lynn, on October 26, 1926, is scheduled for June 8, before Judge Joseph P. Quinn in Superior Court here.

Counsel for Frizone states he will not consent to plead guilty to any lesser charge, but demands trial on first degree.

Humor and Truth

HELEN ROWLAND

New book of the noted authoress, "This Married Life," is just off the press and destined to become one of the most widely read and discussed publications of the year.

MARRIED LIFE TALK IN BOOK BY ROWLAND

"The average man is wedded to business, golf, hunting or fishing—and his wife is merely the co-respondent."

So writes Helen Rowland, famous epigrammist, in her new book, "This Married Life," just off the press of the Dodge Publishing Company, New York, and bound to become one of the most widely read and discussed publications of the year.

For after all, everybody either is married, has been married or may in time reach that state. There is no more universal topic in the world than marriage and Helen Rowland, eminently qualified to approach the subject does so in her characteristic, snappedthe-whip epigrammatical manner that makes good reading.

Fannie Hurst calls Helen Rowland, "this wise woman with the high-spirited bow." Wisdom she has surely and her fashion of setting down her thoughts is well likened to the prow of one of those old-time Yankee clipper ships coming down wind, all canvas drawing. Sharp and fast. She writes daily for the Boston Evening American and enjoys a tremendous following.

There are laughs in good measure in "This Married Life." There are lines well calculated and interspersed with the humor that give the reader pause for sober meditation. For instance, "A woman would rather be called cute than be President."

Humor there, and truth also (I asked my wife). And not far afield in the same book: "In the trite old definition of marriage what you need is a friend, not a lover." No humor there, real food for thought, and still the truth.

Helen Rowland dedicates her book "To all those who are outside the bonds of matrimony, and striving to get in—and to all those who are inside, and struggling to get out." To all those who look forward to marriage as an ideal and to all those who look back upon it as an ordeal. To all those who hunger for love—and to all those who are fed up with it. To all husbands, including your husband and my husband. And to every 'Mr' since Eve."

Both men and women who read Helen Rowland's book will enjoy its sharp witticism and benefit from its sage advice. The average woman will probably use it like she does her cook book, often and with good results when the recipe is carefully followed. The average man will read it, and sigh, and wish he had met Helen Rowland before she married.

RUTH SAYS GRAY LIED ABOUT DEATH PLOTS

By RUTH BROWN SNYDER.

CHAPTER 9.

(Copyright, 1927, by Nine Features Syndicate.)

FROM Judd Gray's story it would appear that I made nine attempts on my husband's life before the tenth, for which I am sentenced.

The gas-hose story had some foundation in fact.

Now, here is the story I told Judd. I had long begged Mr. Snyder to buy me an electric heater. But my husband was not very free-handed in spending money. Three times the hose, which was attached to a cock low on the wall in the living room, just off the main hallway of our home, had come off by itself or through some accidental or careless contact with it.

The cock itself, had been made by hand by Mr. Snyder, and he had connected it with a piece of piping running through the wall. The cock always leaked.

On the particular day of the gas-hose incident, Mr. Snyder was resting on a day bed, or couch, against the outer wall. It was a raw, chilly day, about sundown. I saw he had fallen asleep.

I tucked a cover about him. I lit the gas stove and drew the thing as near to his feet as the shortness of the rubber tube permitted. That left it taut, a few inches off the floor. I had to cross it to get back to the door through which I had entered.

Either I had drawn the stove too far in order to get it as close to his feet for his warmth as possible, or else in crossing my heel must have pulled the tube off the cock. Rubber hose is soft, so if I touched it with my foot I would hardly feel it. I kept on going and went out.

HAD SHE REALLY PLOTTED.

Now, had I plotted his death that way, I would not have done it in a lofty, roomy enclosure, with a wide door open to the hall which led to the stairs and unobstructed circulation through the outer corridor, the dining room and the stairway and the entire upper portion of the house.

Gray recited how, in the Waldorf, I told him with great grief how I had fed Mr Snyder "enough mercury to kill ten people" as poison in order to murder him that he would be thinking it was a hiccough cure.

What really took place was as follows:

Mr Snyder was taken with a violent attack of hiccoughing, at home. For five days this continued, growing worse. He wouldn't let me send for a doctor, that was another subject on which he was close-fisted.

I asked my mother, a trained nurse, what was good. She recommended essence of an ipine compound which I got and tried, but it didn't help. He was getting thin and weak. He didn't eat, slept little, was in great pain and awful mental frame.

Again I asked my mother to do something, and this time she recommended pieces, also, rhubarb and soda. I tried both. The first didn't help and the second only nauseated him until he was so bold not the overdose [illegible] for rhubarb and soda, [illegible] of [illegible].

He was lying [illegible] unconscious. I took the thing in my own hands and called in a doctor. He smiled, and he were a pack of fools and [illegible] give him a teaspoonful of bismuth. He charged me $2 and walked out.

CALLED HIM DANGEROUS.

I took him to the door, and as he put on his hat, he turned to me and said:

"Women like you are dangerous. To save the price of a doctor's call you let a man suffer like that and, which you don't realize, endanger his life. Do you know that [illegible] days more of this would kill that man?"

There was my chance if I wanted Albert Snyder to die.

He was still asleep. He didn't know the physician had been there. He had not heard a word of it. Three days more of this would kill him!

All I would have had to do was to let it go the three days. He wouldn't call a doctor. He couldn't say anything out that I had tried every remedy that as far as he knew had been suggested.

Did I let him die?

I ran out and bought a dime's worth of bismuth. I ran back, shook him furiously, got him half-conscious, threw water on him, rubbed his pulse, told him I had a new cure, a sure one this time.

I put the bismuth down his throat. He choked on it, but swallowed it. In half an hour he was getting up the [illegible] over, calling for food.

He never knew I had called a doctor. He never knew how near to the end his determined refusal to call a medical man had taken him. But it cured him.

That was what really happened.

Gray said I showed him poison in my home on one of his visits and that he inferred me to pour it in the sink. He said I had filed the label off, and when he asked me whether I didn't fear a terrible accident might happen through keeping unlabeled poison in the home I told him I had it hidden in a box in the medicine chest.

That story was about as true as most of Gray's villainous lies. It was HE who sent me the poison. I filed the label off for fear my mother or husband would see it and ask me how I came to have it (with an upstate druggist's label on it).

I did pour it into the sink in my home in Judd's presence. But the same was one in which I had used from a [illegible] bottle could be so cold-blooded as to deliberately buy a deadly poison to take a human life. It was I who then took out the cork and spilled it down the drain.

The action was very similar to his getting the sashweight and my giving it back to him. I offered the bottle of poison back to him. He said he was afraid to have it on him, that he was drinking and there might be a mishap. So I uncorked it and poured it out.

All this is typical of the pert-truth fictions which shocked a world about me and which caused me to be convicted and sentenced to death.

WIVES versus STENOGRAPHERS

Has every Woman in the HOME
a RIVAL in her Husband's Office?

Which influence is stronger in a man's life?

His wife? The woman who makes his home and whose life is so intimately joined to his?

Or his stenographer—the woman who is with him all day, the woman who knows all his thoughts and shares his business battles?

Do you men realize what your wives know about your stenographers?

Do you wives realize what stenographers know about you and about your husbands?

Do stenographers know what the bosses' wives really think of them?

In this duel to dominate a man, which woman has the better chance? Which generally wins?

Read what two women—one a wife, the other a stenographer—have told in the July SMART SET.

The wife—"I intend to speak with what may be called brutal frankness."

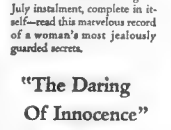
The stenographer—"I don't mind poor office conditions nearly so much as I do the wives that go with the office."

Words that cut to the quick—two women who tell the truth without flinching—read these remarkable documents of merciless facts in the July SMART SET—just out.

"The Real Diary Of A Real Girl"

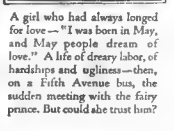
The diary that has started nation-wide discussion. Who really knows a woman's heart? Yet sometime, somewhere, every woman must speak out—not for any human ear, only for her diary. Don't miss the astonishing frankness, the intense throb of actual life in the great July instalment, complete in itself—read this marvelous record of a woman's most jealously guarded secrets.

"The Daring Of Innocence"



A girl who had always longed for love—"I was born in May, and May people dream of love." A life of dreary labor, of hardships and ugliness—then, on a Fifth Avenue bus, the sudden meeting with the fairy prince. But could she trust him?

"They Call It Heart Balm"



Does a girl lose even though she wins when a man breaks his promise to marry her and she asks justice in court? A millionaire—a high school girl—a verdict of forty thousand dollars. Was it worth it?

Behind a Family Doctor's Door

To the physician come women and men in pain of soul and body—and they confide.

Should a doctor ever tell?

To save others, one doctor, a famous physician, has told—hiding the real names of the man and the two women.

But giving the amazing facts.

The man who had made money, and turned from work to play—the wife who could not hold his love—the vividly alluring dancer—"she seems all silk to me, and young enough to share with me the joys of life."

Don't miss this astounding real story—the first of a series of startling revelations by a family physician, which he himself calls, "Behind a Family Doctor's Door"—read the first episode in July SMART SET.

Also three great serials—David Belasco in an astonishingly frank article on flappers—Elinor Glyn with a brilliant analysis of "love on approval"—an unequaled combination of true-life stories and true-life features, out today.

SCHOONER ON FIRE IN PORT

A blaze that resisted efforts of harbor firemen for more than four hours in the hold of the two-masted Boston schooner, Bessie M. Dunlap, at the Special Island dock caused damage estimated at $7,500 to the vessel today and destroyed with $1,000 worth of fertilizer cargo.

Tons of water were poured into the hold by the crew of tugboat 41 which sped to the scene soon after another fight against flames that consumed the Boston Elevated Hospital.

Black smoke repelled a crew of the schooner who tried to cope with the flames upon first discovering the fire, and it spread and endangered the tugboat when they tried to extricate her tug lines held to save the Dunlap.

Captain W. Johnson of the schooner reported that an explosion in the cargo was responsible for the blaze. Two vessels were lined up the fire for a short time, but the tug George J. Hall upstairs of the fire up pattern of the hoses.

THOSE who have contributed to flood sufferers through the Red Cross will be glad to know that their money has been handled under Secretary Hoover's direction, which means that it has been well spent. You are urged to respond generously to the request for further assistance.

BUT FOR modern scientific methods and instruments, this greatest flood in the history of man since Bible days would have been a calamity beyond conception, with tens of thousands dead and disease sweeping over great areas.

Modern science, flying machines, radio, fast motor boats, all the resources of government and of engineering have worked with admirable results to minimize this calamity.

EIGHTEEN THOUSAND guests saw 5,667 graduate at one university, Columbia College, yesterday. Much wisdom is turned loose on the world and, unfortunately, much over-confidence that must have its bruises and disappointments before the world makes it really useful.

If there were only a university that could make men think, instead of making them believe that they really know.

ONCE THE GREAT Rufus Choate, charging $2,500 for an opinion, apologetically explained that his opinion represented thirty years of study. Rufus Choate was a beginner. In the settlement of the Gould estate lawsuit, of which the late George Gould said: "It will go on, because it is a good thing for the lawyers," very satisfactory fees are announced. One lawyer gets $330,315.98. Another is paid for helping Jay Gould's heirs fight each other, $529,909.98. The odd cents tell how careful the lawyers are to make the charges exactly correct.

These are small fees. Ask Mr Louis S. Levy of Chalbourne, Stanchfield & Levy, who has offices in New York and Paris. His record fee is above $2,000,000, and earned.

POPE PIUS spent his seventieth birthday, on Tuesday last, in prayer, and in "meditation on the meaning of his years of life."

Messages of congratulation are received from all over the world by the Pope, who spent his whole day in strict solitude, and got a good birthday example to all. We devote too little time to serious thought in retrospection, and to asking ourselves what is the meaning of this life, its old age, and of the life that is beyond.

Author of "Chickie"

Story of a Girl Who Asked That Life Should Pay Her in Full

Roen Ross, a vital, attractive girl with a great dream of love in her heart, goes on a vacation to Gloucester. Here she meets Michael Scott, blue-eyed and romantic. Before Michael returns to Cornell he tells Roen that he loves her. He asks her to marry when the years of studying are over. Roen is swept with the fervor of a first deep emotion. She goes back to her job as private secretary for James Burton, manager of a Kilby street insurance company, filled with a joyous yearning. Roen is a strong, ardent type, the sole support of her invalid mother, "Dearie," and her little brother "Jackie." These two were entrusted to her by her adored young father, "Bobby-dad," on the night before his death. Roen fights valiantly to keep this trust—to give a liberal education to her beloved little brother. Years of struggle pass. Michael is steadfast. But the expenses of the Milton home grow. When Roen is nearly panic-stricken, James Burton pays court. Dearie beseeches her to win him. All their difficulties will vanish. Roen cannot surrender Michael and promises to marry him when he earns enough. She refuses Burton. Dearie learns this and, dreading to become a burden, applies for admittance to the Milton Town Farm. Her application is referred to Roen.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Chapter XXI.

"YOU said you might help, Roen. Now why do you take it back and tell me not to come?"

Burton was pleading. Roen's change puzzled him.

She grew pale as she had been crimson. "Nothing is changed with me, Mr. Burton."

"And if I understand this, you're willing to have me come? Just to help your mother?"

"I don't know what to say."

"I'll say it for you. I'll come."

She thought, trembling: "Oh—my life is all scratched up!" He wanted to drive her home, but she insisted that she had shopping to do.

His eyes appealed and smiled. And there in the spacious vestibule of the building he stood, holding Roen's hand in a lingering clasp: "Some other time then!"

As his car sped away, Evelyn Royce sauntered over and took Roen's arm

"Well," said she, with the unfailing knack shallow women display for the offensive phrase: "Jimmie taking you up again!"

"No—he just took me down," answered Roen tartly.

"He certainly looked the class. Too bad you can't bag him, Ron."

"How's Chris?" asked Roen affably.

Evelyn colored.

Chris Stevens was the junior partner in the bond house where Evelyn worked. He took her to the theatre once. Aunt Carrie came rushing over the next day with a gaudy account of this romance to Dearie. And Evelyn, silly with expectation indulged in feverish visions of a lovely, capricious girl in orange blossoms and satin—Evelyn Royce, bride of her employer.

Snubbing things were said of Frank Mullin, perennial suitor. "Evelyn likes Frank, of course," said Aunt Carrie. "But an ordinary bookkeeper—a match for my Evelyn? Why, she's turned down dozens of better chances than poor Frank!"

Evelyn was now 25, petite and pretty, but already a slight hardness in her vivacity. At Roen's question, her eyes narrowed. "He wants to be secretly married," she hastened glibly. "Said his mother might object. You bet I turned him down pretty cold! Better catches than Chris Stevens. Look," said she, showing a silver vanity case. "Frank's birthday present. He's

NEW HOSPITAL SHIP PLANNED

'Glad You Called,' Says Judd to Wife

$200,000 SOUGHT BY HOSPITAL

Directors of the Boston Floating Hospital, at a special meeting today, decided to take immediate steps to replace the Floating Hospital, destroyed by fire at the North End pier.

Emergency equipment will be used while a new hospital ship is either being built or reconverted.

The directors also made an urgent appeal to the public for funds which are needed as a result of the destruction of the ship and its equipment. At least $200,000 in addition to the regular maintenance is needed at once if the work of saving babies this Summer is to go on.

Following the meeting today, which was presided over by G. Loring Briggs of No. 244 Washington street, the following statement was issued

"The trustees of the Boston Floating Hospital have today unanimously voted to take immediate steps to provide emergency equipment to carry on the work this Summer until permanent facilities can be provided. This will entail, of course, an increase in our current expenses for the season as well as the expenses of building a new boat.

"While we have carried proper insurance the amount received will still be wholly inadequate. For this purpose we need $200,000 in addition to the amount necessary to carry on the work this year. Contributions may be sent to Ralph Lowell, treasurer, Lee-Higginson Company, No. 70 Federal street, Boston."

Chairman Briggs announced that already efforts are being made to locate a boat for temporary use, but there is no craft available which will be anywhere near as large as the vessel destroyed, and it will be difficult to equip an emergency boat with the proper kind of equipment, but that the work of saving the ill babies of Boston will go on this year as usual.

Frederic E. Dowling of Allston, in a letter to Mayor Nichols, today suggested that the city turn over Long Island to the directors of the Floating Hospital and that tents be erected there to shelter the little ones. The letter suggests that the aid of the Federal government be asked for the necessary equipment and that a city boat be used to transfer the youngsters from Boston to the island and return.

Mr. Dowling stated that he had already talked to Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, who viewed the plan as a logical solution of the problem which has arised from the burning of the hospital boat.

DIVORCED DAUGHTER OF JULIUS ROSENWALD WEDS

London, June 2 (A.P.).—Mrs. Helen Rosenwald Deutsch, daughter of Julius Rosenwald, Chicago merchant and philanthropist, was married today to Dr. David Levy. Mrs. Deutsch was given a divorce from Armand Deutsch in Paris in April on ground of abandonment. Today's ceremony, in the register's office in Prince's row, Westminister, was attended by the bride's parents and a brother of the bridegroom.

BOYCOTT ON U.S. MAY SPREAD

Mexico City, June 2 (I.N.S.)—The United States embassy today received an inquiry from the State Department for official information regarding President Calles' decree forbidding heads of government departments from buying goods in the United States that can be purchased elsewhere.

Reports are current in some quarters that Guatemala and possibly some other Latin American countries may follow the lead of Mexico in boycotting United States goods.

Mexican newspapers assert that when the Mexican government is unable to buy needed supplies at Rome it will turn to Europe

Death Car Motorman Held

Peabody, June 2 (A.P.)—William T. Gavin, operator of a Lynn electric car, that struck the auto of Thomas G. Smith last Monday, resulting in the death of Mrs. Smith, was arrested for manslaughter and held in $2,000 today.

Medill McCormcik's Widow Out to Beat Gov. Len Small

Washington, June 2 (I.N.S.).—Mrs. Medill McCormick, widow of a Senator from Illinois and daughter of the late Mark Hanna, is "very seriously" considering entering the Illinois gubernatorial race next year.

After a call on President Coolidge at the White House, Mrs. McCormick, in reply to questions, said: "There can be no harmony in the Republican party in Illinois until Governor Small is defeated."

"And I think we can accomplish that," she said, smiling.

$75,000 FIRE DESTROYS CHAIR PLANT IN STERLING

Sterling, June 2 (A.P.).—Fire starting in the finishing room in the J. R. Buck chair shop today caused damage estimated at about $75,000. At noon the plant was destroyed and firemen made every effort to save the Sterling cider mill.

Joseph P. Miller, 38, of 909 Eden Glen, Leominster, attached to a fire company, was seriously injured when he fell from a truck while on the way to the fire

THREATEN LIFE OF LIVERMORE

New York, June 2 (A.P.).—Receipt of a mysterious letter and a threatening telephone call today caused additional guards to be stationed at the Great Neck, Long Island, home of Jesse L. Livermore, where two "gentlemen robbers" obtained $53,000 in cash and jewels early Sunday.

The letter was mailed from a Brooklyn postoffice Tuesday. We are coming to see you again tonight and we mean going to see you on business," it said. It was signed, "The Gentlemen Robbers."

The visit failed to materialize but an unidentified man who telephoned the house later that day warned to "Tell Mr. Livermore that it would be a serious matter if he didn't heed the warning." There was no further conversation. "What this warning" was could not be learned.

An unidentified man who telephoned the police Monday afternoon that the gang had headquarters in Harlem caused a stepping up of the hunt for the thieves and extortion. Detectives also were assigned to watch a bank where the telephone informant said the stolen gems were in a safe deposit box

MEET FIRST TIME SINCE TRIAL

Ossining, N. Y., June 2 (A.P.).—Mrs. Isabel Gray, wife of Judd Gray who is awaiting the death penalty in Sing Sing Prison for the murder of Albert Snyder, saw her husband today for the first time since before the trial started.

She arrived at the prison, accompanied by her brother-in-law, Frank Brundage of Norwalk, Ct., and E. D. Dulant, deputy sheriff of Norwalk. The two men were denied admittance by the warden, but they went to White Plains and got a court order and were admitted later.

Mrs. Gray was in the waiting booth as her husband was led into the steel cage three feet away. "I'm awfully glad you came," Gray said quietly. "How are you?" she asked.

They talked in low tones for an hour, neither showing any emotion. Mrs. Gray gave her address as Norwalk, Ct.

Salient Points of the Play

Trick 1—If every finesse in the hand is successful, Declarer cannot even then avoid the loss of a Club trick. East is marked with the singleton ten of Clubs. By permitting him to win the first trick, East is forced to open one of the three remaining suits, any one of them at a double advantage.

Trick 11—Only the Spade suit remains, so East can be safely thrown in for the extra trick.

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your Bridge problems. Write to him care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

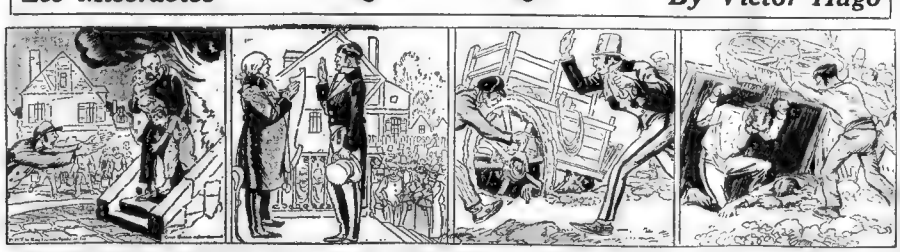
Les Miserables — By Victor Hugo



JEAN VALJEAN arrived at the village of Montreuil-sur-Mer while a great fire was in progress in the townhouse. He dashed into the house at the risk of his life and saved two children. After that, no one thought to ask for his pass-port. He became known as "Father Madeleine."

HE grew in favor with the town's people, especially after he had invented a method of improving the manufacture of black glass trinkets, the town's chief industry, and made himself and the entire community rich. Finally he was appointed Mayor, as a mark of confidence.

TWO people seemed to resent his popularity. One was Javert, the inspector of police, who had a vague suspicion he had seen him as a convict. The other was an old man named Fauchelevent. One day Fauchelevent was pinned under his cart, which was crushing him to death.

JAVERT said he had never known but one man with the strength to lift such a cart, and that man was convict Jean Valjean. Jean smiled at him sadly, crept under the cart and, after a terrible struggle, lifted it, saving Fauchelevent's life.

FRANKLIN CAR 25 YEARS OLD

Twenty-five years ago today, on June 2, 1902, the first Franklin automobile was sold, the buyer being S. G. Averell of New York. This first production of the air-cooled Franklin was also the start of four-cylinder construction, all other cars up to that time being of the one or two-cylinder type.

In the original Franklin the cylinders were set crosswise of the chassis at the front. The motor was equipped with horizontal fins and was dependent upon the forward motion of the car for the flow of cooling air across the fins.

It was the invention of John Wilkinson, a mechanical engineer engaged in the boiler business, who had worked for four years perfecting what, at that time, was the most highly developed power plant in the automobile industry. Wilkinson's experimental model was started in 1897, giving the present-day Franklin rank as one of the oldest automobiles in the history of the industry.

Today there are Franklin dealers in every city and town of importance in the country and the development of the use of the Franklin in foreign countries is showing a large increase.

The growth of the organization has been accomplished without reorganization and without change in management from its inception to its present position.

FOURTH CADILLAC RADIO CONCERT ON AIR TONIGHT

The fourth Cadillac LaSalle radio concert will be broadcast tonight between 8 and 9 o'clock, Eastern daylight saving time, from Station WEAF, New York, with the following New England stations in the hook-up: WEEI, Boston; KDKL, Providence; WTAG, Worcester; WTIC, Hartford, and WCSH, Portland.

The program is the most varied and lavish yet given by the Cadillac-LaSalle hour of music. The orchestra is augmented by a sextet consisting of four male and two female voices. The sextet will also be used for duet and quartet selection of orchestral accompaniment.

Horatio Rubino, director of the orchestra, has given the matter of the program more than the usual amount of thought, and states confidently that tonight's concert will be an outstanding radio event.

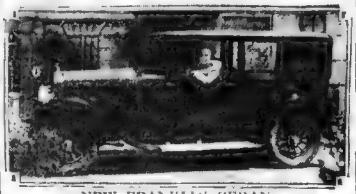
"STYLE IN THIS CAR"



NEW FRANKLIN SEDAN

"A woman who knows good style is intrigued by the new Franklin sedan," says Laura LaPlante, and she should know, for she is the favorite style exponent of Universal Pictures, and her Franklin is a well known sight in the fashion spots of the Pacific Coast.

WHIPPET SIX DESIGN MAKES CAR POPULAR

With the sale of the Whippet six reaching new high marks most Willys-Overland dealers declare that popularity is partly due to the car's unusual riding qualities. This is to say, is brought about mainly through the adoption of the low centre of gravity lines.

The use of this design, their engineers point out, places the weight of the car close to the ground, eliminating vibration and top sway.

The low centre of gravity construction is a noticeable feature this year in all products of the Willys-Overland Company following the success of the four-cylinder Whippet, which made its appearance nearly a year ago.

The Whippet hugs the ground at all speeds, riding along smoothly and not jolted or swerved by road shocks, which would be distinctly noticeable otherwise. Engineers claim this form of construction means the demand of motor car buyers without sacrifice of power or speed.

Track Walker Fined

The Boston & Maine Railroad police have started a drive in Waltham to stop citizens from walking the rails. The first victim was George D. Jones, and although he told the court he merely crossed the railroad right of way, he was fined $10.

TWO-CAR-TO-FAMILY PLAN IS POPULAR

"There is no question," says E. H. McCarty, general sales manager of the Nash Motors Company, "but that the American public is rapidly adopting the 2-car-to-a-family plan.

"Figures compiled on this subject by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce show that 10 per cent. of all families in America own more than one car and that 13 per cent. of all car-owning families in the United States have two cars or more.

"This situation is not at all remarkable. Quick, convenient, transportation long since has become recognized as a practical necessity in the modern conduct of business, domestic and social affairs. Thousands of families who have but one car today are definitely planning on two cars for the future.

"Three new models just introduced by Nash Motors are designed to meet the two-car situation, each in its particular field. These are the new Advanced Six Coupe, with rumble seat, the new Advanced Six Sport Touring model, and the new Special Six Cabriolet with collapsible top and rumble seat. Nash dealers report many of these models have been purchased by families who have adopted the two-car plan."

NEW DODGE SIX ON SALE MONDAY

The Dodge Brothers Senior Six will make its debut Monday, Dodge companies announced today.

This model, characterized by the Dodge people as having been the "most-talked of non-existent motor car in America," is said to have been forced into existence by the power and persistence of unfounded but definite rumors.

As a matter of fact the question of Dodge building a six-cylinder car has been troubling those in and outside the motor car industry for a number of years. The "new car," however, was seasonably late year after year.

Dodge Brothers now comes out with the explanation, of it all. They didn't have any idea of building such a model. They had very good reasons for not building it, but like the drops of water on the stone, the continual questioning brought results.

When marketing and engineering problems, which had formerly made the manufacture of a "six" seem to be objectionable, had been solved and research work had proved that such a machine could be created to Dodge standards, the work went on.

A brand new plant representing the expenditure of $4,500,000 was built, and the "six" became a reality instead of a conjecture.

Now the Senior Six is here. Next Monday the public will see "the car that was created by force of popular opinion."

DEVELOP CA-VEL FOR LA SALLE

"A new upholstery material combining the artistic worth of velvet and the lustre and wearing qualities of mohair has been developed for the new La Salle, Cadillac's recently announced companion car," Albion Danforth, general manager of the Cadillac Company in Boston, declared today.

"The new material has been perfected by the combined efforts of Cadillac and Fisher technicians and representatives of a well-known upholstery manufacturer," he continued.

"In their investigations this special committee sought a material of authentic decorative qualities, beauty of tone, a soft, luxurious seating body and a lustrous finish which would harmonize with the unusual and distinctive body designs of the new car.

"The name Florentine Ca-vel, which has been given the new upholstery, is pleasantly reminiscent of Italian origin. It is being used in various designs as one of the upholstering materials in the new La Salle closed cars."

NEW BOAT ON ST. LAWRENCE

The S.S. St. Lawrence, building at the Davie Shipbuilding and Repairing Company of Lauzon-Levis, P. Q., for the Montreal-Saguenay Division of the Canada Steamship Lines, Limited, has been launched.

The ship was sponsored by Mrs. W. H. Coverdale of New York city, wife of the president of the company and after the ceremony of launching the party witnessed the launching of the keel for one of the two new ships for the Montreal-Quebec service, which are to be started immediately and which will be completed in May, 1928.

Remarkable progress has been made in the construction of the SS. "St. Lawrence," and when she leaves the water she will be practically completed. Engines and mechanical equipment are all in place, woodwork, plumbing and wiring are finished. About all that remains to be done is a small amount of painting, and the installing of such articles of furniture as carpets, beds, tables and chairs. After this is done, the trial trip will be made, and the ship will enter the Saguenay service, making two trips, one on June 21st and another on June 24th. On June 27th she sails to Charlottetown, P. E. I., on her first chartered voyage with the St. Louis de France choir.

The "St. Lawrence" is the largest ship serving the river whose name she bears—329 feet, 10 inches in length, 67 feet wide at the main deck and is twin screw and oil burning.

COAST TO COAST IN NATURE OF CRUISE

The voyage of the Panama Pacific Steamship line from New York to San Francisco is much in the nature of a short cruise, and the calls, Havana and the Canal Zone, add greatly to its attractions.

At Havana one finds an interesting city that, in certain aspects, the centuries have changed but slightly. The eight-hour sail through the Panama Canal is made in daylight. The passage is made in daylight.

From Balboa, the western terminus, a visit may be made to the interesting ruins of the ancient city of Panama, just outside the Canal Zone.

INDIAN SUMMER TOUR IN ITALY

Perhaps the choicest month of all in sunny Italy is the month of September. It corresponds with the Indian Summer season of our own section, and the tourists who leave Boston on the S. S. "Martha Washington" on the Mediterranean cruise and tour, will enjoy their visits to Trieste, Milan, Venice and through the Italian lake region and the cities Alba to Lucerne. For much of the party will have day stops with shore excursions.

The party will be in Paris during the week of the American Legion Convention, September 18 to 24th. Returning, the party will stop over night at Lyons and sail from the port of Marseilles on September 29th arriving Boston October 6th. This most comprehensive 36-day cruise and tour will be fully explained in detailed literary by George E. Marsters, Inc., 248 Washington street, Boston, Mass.

NEW GALLATIN INN ON PIONEER TRAIL

With the formal opening of Yellowstone National Park for this year on June 19, there will be dedicated at the head of the recently completed Gallatin Gateway a distinctive structure which will provide listers to this popular park with accommodations and at the same time become a monument to two pioneers who blazed the first trail to the Pacific through this region.

The new Gallatin Railway Inn takes its name from the Gallatin River christened by Lewis and Clark when they reached this point on their exploration across the continent in 1803.

READY TO BATTLE FOR RYDER GOLF CUP

ARTHUR HAVERS — ARCHIE COMPSTON — GENE SARAZEN — WALTER HAGEN

'Wildcat' Hudkins Is Correctly Named

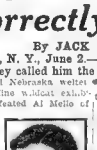
By JACK CONWAY

New York, N. Y., June 2—They named Ace Hudkins correctly when they called him the Wildcat.

The sensational Nebraska welterweight gave a fine wildcat exhibition when he defeated Al Mello of Lowell by a decision margin in a ten-round bout at the Queens boro Stadium.

Hudkins fights like a combination of Stanley Ketchell and Battling Nelson. He is the busiest welterweight since the palmy days of Honey Melody and Joe Wolcott.

What a fighter is this 22-year old kid from out of the West as he came into the ring wearing a cap at a rakish angle, his blond locks sticking out wildy. He had a bathrobe closed carelessly around his shoulders, while he grinned from ear to ear.



Jack Conway

When Hudkins left the ring, the cap was tilted the same angle, while the grin was a little broader.

HUDKINS TIRELESS.

Hudkins is blessed with a million dollars worth of encouragement. He is tireless. He could hardly wait for Referee Jack O'Sullivan to complete giving his instructions so that he could get down to the business at hand.

And the wildcat always tried to carry out his orders to the letter.

It was a hard, fierce fight, probably the greatest welterweight scrap that has been witnessed in New York in years.

Mello was beaten beyond a question, but he went down fighting.

MELLO SCORES KNOCKDOWN.

The only knockdown of the battle was scored in the fourth frame when Mello shot a terrific left hand punch to Hudkins' jaw. The latter dropped to the canvas in a heap, but was on his feet before the referee could start to count. The fact that he had kissed the canvas seemed to make Hudkins fight with greater fury than ever. He let punches fly through the air at a tremendous clip. Mello weighed 148½ pounds against 147 pounds for Hudkins.

In the opening session, there was some bitter fighting at close quarters. Both men refused to back away an inch. They stood there and banged away as if a king's ransom was the prize of victory.

Hudkins stepped on the juice in the second round. He was all over Mello, pumping left and right hand punches to the head and body.

The Wildcat had a nasty habit of holding with one hand and hitting with the other in Harry Greb style. When he couldn't hit Mello on the front of the body, he whanged him around the back. This Hudkins person knows a waste any of his time worrying about the rules of the fistic racket His motto is to keep punching away no matter where the socks may land

Mello came back strong in the third round and scored with some sweet left handers to the head and body The Wildcat kept pilnse in, but I thought Al had the edge.

The fourth round also saw Mello out in front, chiefly on account of his knockdown.

The Wildcat did his stuff in the fifth and sixth chapters, and had a wide margin. He made his big play with rapid leaders to the body which jarred Mello to the soles of his feet.

Mello, blessed with a true fighters heart, came back in the seventh and had the margin.

From then on it was all Hudkins. At the finish, Al's right eye was partly closed, while he was bleeding freely from the nose.

Mello received a $10,000 guarantee, while Hudkins was paid off at $15,000.

No Tears Are Shed Over 'Mighty Casey' of Tulsa

Tulsa, Okla., June 2 (A.P.)—Casey at the Bat is more than a poem in Tulsa. It's an event.

The Casey of the Tulsa Western League team bids fair to be something the other Casey didn't do, much to Mudville's disgust.

When Peter Casey knocked the ball out of the lot to give Tulsa a 7-5 victory over Amarillo yesterday, he brought his total number of home runs for the season to 16, equal to Babe Ruth's, and assumed the four-base hit leadership of the league.

The blow was Casey's fifth home run in three days and his seventh in seven.

Casey has averaged a home run every other game in which he has played this year. So savagely and successfully has he batted that each one of the 49 safe hits he has made in 31 games has averaged better than two bases.

The 49 hits were for a total of 113 bases—16 home runs, three triples, ten two-baggers and 20 singles.

Casey, who plays in the outfield, now leads the league in batting with a mark of .441. Another Tulsa outfielder, Munson, is runner-up to him in home runs, having hit 15 in 46 games.

ANOTHER PROBE INTO DEATH OF ADAMS

Kansas City, Kan., June 2 (I.N.S.)—A J. Mellott, county attorney here today declared he would start an independent investigation into the death last night of Steve Adams (Pittsburgh boxer, who died of a broken neck during a ten-round bout with Romano Mandell, world's light heavyweight champion.

Mellott said he would prefer manslaughter charges against Mandell if the investigation brings out evidence to support such action.

Adams collapsed after Mandell's left jab to the stomach in the second round when he was forced into the ropes after a clinch.

Leo Fornaciare, Adams' manager, declared he believed the ropes were responsible for the fighter's death. Several officials of the American Legion Post, under whose auspices the fight was held, however, declared they believed the ropes were standard construction

The ropes were not tight enough Fornaciare declared, and stated he believed Adams was buffeted by the middle rope as he fell, the action breaking his neck.

Meanwhile an investigation is being made by Coroner J. W. Hayward of Wyandotte County. Mandell's hearing was continued today until Saturday, pending both investigations. He is under $3,000 bond on a technical charge of vagrancy.

Milligan Objects to Georges as Referee

London June 2 (I.N.S.)—Charlie H. Cochran announced today that the Mickey Walker-Tommy Milligan bout here will go twenty rounds. The referee has not been decided upon. Jack Kearns, manager for Walker, wants Georges Carpentier as officiate, but Milligan objects.

Sox Sign St. Mary College Star Hurler

Topeka, Kan., June 2 (A.P.)—Frank Bushey, Wheaton, Kan., pitcher, captain of St. Mary's College team, has signed with Boston Americans to report June 15. He did not lose a game in the two years of his college captaincy.

FORMER GRID STAR IS DANGEROUSLY ILL

Chicago, June 2 (A. P.)—Walter D. Graham, famous football star at the University of Michigan 25 years ago, was fighting for his life today after an operation for removal of a brain tumor.

Graham was a member of Yost's noted eleven from 1900 to 1904, playing guard. He went through four years without missing a game Time was never taken out for him.

Mello Unable to Box Joe Simonich

New York, June 2.—Al Mello will be unable to go through with his bout with Joe Simonich for the Crosscup-Pshon Post at Braves Field on June 13, according to a wire Manager Goldman sent to Alex MacLean, Legion matchmsker, today.

Mello will be unable to box for six weeks as a result of the hammering he received as he went down to defeat before Ace Hudenis. Al was around today, his face badly marked from the effects of the Wildcat's punches. McLean apparently realized Mello would be unable to keep his engagement with Simonich, so early today he talked with Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, over the long distance telephone. He wanted Sharkey to meet some fair heavyweight at the Legion carnival. Buckley was obliged to turn down the offer in view of the fact that Mrs. Sharkey will be operated on here tomorrow and the Boston heavyweight wants to be on hand in his wife during her illness.

Veterans to Have Show, Regardless of Mello

"The Crosscup-Pshon Post will have a boxing show at Braves Field, June 13, regardless of whether or not Al Mello is able to fulfil his engagement against Joe Simonich," declared Alex McLean, matchmaker for the Legion, when informed that word had been received from New York stating that Mello would not be able to meet Simonich as scheduled.

"Mello's manager, Bobby Goldman, is to let me know officially, at 7 o'clock tonight, whether or not Al can meet Simonich. If not, and I hope that from all indications he will not, we will put on the show with Mello's name out and another heavyweight in his place. I have not decided upon any statement concerning substitutes. However, I am sure that the show will be held as scheduled."

Coronach Winner of Coronation Cup

Epsom, England, June 2 (A.P.)—Lord Woolavington's Coronach, winner of the 1928 Derby, captured the Coronation Cup at Epsom afternoon, keeping from Embargo, owned by the Maharajah of Rajpipla, and Sir Bailey's Foxlaw the only other horses to start, finished eight lengths behind Embargo.

Coronach was the odds on favorite at 3 to 10. The odds on Embargo were 7 to 2 and on Foxlaw 20 to 1. All are four-year-olds. The race was at 1½ miles.

MILLS AND DE ROSA TO BOX FOR N. H. HEAVY TITLE

Franklin, N. H., June 2.—Bob Mills of Franklin and Cyclone DeRosa of Nashua are to clash here tomorrow night in a 10 round bout. The promoters announce that the winner of the battle will be declared heavyweight champion of New Hampshire.

In the semi-final Tommy Clark of Boston will oppose Johnny Huff of Nashua. Johnny Martin of Boston will referee the bouts.

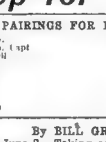
Worcester, June 2.—Taking advantage of the final opportunity for practice before the opening of the Ryder Cup matches, between the best professionals in England and the leading American homebreds, which start tomorrow with Scotch foursomes, every member of the contesting teams is out polishing up his game here at the Worcester Country Club today.

Six of the nine members of the Britton team are here to-day, and by [illegible] Al Watrous, of the American aggregation. The remainder of the invaders are hitting their second day's [illegible] Capt. Ted Ray, Arthur Havers, Aubrey Boomer, George Gadd, Fred Robson and Charles Whitcombe arrived here Tuesday morning from New York, while George Duncan, Archie Compston and Jack Todd, who is the spare buster, had their initial look at Worcester yesterday.



Bill Grimes

Since their first rounds on Tuesday morning, the Britishers have had nothing but praise for the Worcester layout. According to the invaders, Worcester is ideal for their style of play, and although they have refused to make any predictions as to the outcome, they are all displaying an air of confidence.

SECOND TOURNEY.

This will be the second time that the American and British professionals have played for the Ryder Cup. These matches were started last Spring in England, when Samuel Ryder donated a cup primarily to the Walker Cup, which is the amateurs' play for each season. The winning team is recognized as the world's champions.

Against a team which was by no means representative of the strength of the United States professionals, the British team won at Wentworth last year. The fact that membership on the United States team has been restricted to American born professionals has resulted in great interest in the coming matches.

The talk among the players is that Hagen will meet George Duncan and unless the [illegible] of the American team has regained his form, it is doubtful if The Hag will [illegible] Duncan is the only Scot on the invading team. When he is right, he is one of the hardest men in the game to defeat.

FINEST PLAYER

[illegible] is at present on the run. He has no preliminary [illegible] is the shortest of the game have followed him for two and three holes before they actually saw him hit his ball, so fast does he play.

Johnny Farrell and Aubrey Boomer will offer a brand of golf seldom seen. Farrell was recently crowned Metropolitan champion and the day is not far off when he will be the United States open champion.

Gene Sarazen, who is traveling at a particularly fast clip, is scheduled to meet that grand old man, Ted Ray. Ray is 50 years of age, but he is just as tough a competitor in any company now as he was ten years ago.

Ray has also held both the United States and British open titles and shares the honors with Harry Vardon of being the greatest professional golfer England ever produced.

Leo Diegel and Joe Turnesa will have their hands full with Fred Robson and Charles Whitcomb, who, although practically unknown in this country have shown enough since they arrived at Worcester to warrant calling the amateurs' play for each season. The winning team is recognized as the world's champions.

Like their teammates, Deigel and Turnesi, John Golden, from Sunny Southern California, will [illegible] have their work cut out for them meeting Archie Compston and Arthur Havers. Due to his wonderful showing in the British open last year, Al Watrous is well thought of by the British players, and he is expected to show the way to George Duncan.

Derby Winner to Build Himself a Modest Home

London, June 2.—"A modest little man, with a bit of a cottage in Felixtowe, sir," is today possessor of a fortune of $363,750, which he won in the Stock Exchange Sweep when Call Boy galloped across the downs a winner of the great Derby.

William Jones is the name of the little gray wisp of a man, 60 years old, and a retired clerk, who was amazed when all London made pilgrimage to the bit of a cottage to gaze upon the biggest local winner.

"I can't say that I have any plans for the future," said William Jones, still a bit dazzled at the fortune that had fallen to him, "but I'm rather too old to change. I shall probably fix up the cottage a bit, and then maybe travel about England for a while."

Sharkey Idol of New York Ring Fans

BY JACK CONWAY

NEW YORK, N. Y., June 2.—"New York is making an idol of Jack Sharkey," remarked Mr. Boston today. "It is the old story of toe world loving a winner," went on the veteran.

"I dropped around to the Queensboro Stadium to see Al Mello batt e Ace Hudkins. Just before the feature bout got under way, Sharkey was introduced "The heavyweight of the hour, Jack Sharkey," shouted the announcer.

"The big crowd cheered wildly. As Sharkey made his way back to his seat hundreds of persons fought for the opportunity to grasp him by the hand

"You'd knock Tunney out," said one man, most of the fans greeted the Boston heavyweight.

"Funny thing about Tunney. New York is his home town and everybody over here wants to see Sharkey knock him cold

"New Yorkers have got an idea that Gene has put on a high hat and they are rooting for Sharkey to dethrone him.

"I was brought up with Gene," one New York reporter told me. 'We lived in a tough district where they even stooped to stealing from their mats. Now that Gene is the champion heavyweight of the world, he considers himself a little bit too good for the old gang.'

Mr. Boston

"Personally I think New Yorkers are a little bit harsh on Tunney. I have always considered him a fine boxer, and a very likeable fellow. He hasn't got a single bad habit, unless you call it a bad habit when a boxer tries to live like Mister Average Citizen. Anyhow the mob has got the old anvil out for Gene, and he will have to stand his knocks.

SHARKEY must get quite a thrill these days when he sees the mob cheering at his feet. Jack sure has got his share of the loot. I have known plenty of fighters to have broken down under the kind of severe criticism that has been Sharkey's lot

"Jack, however, fought harder the larger the gang against him was. He was determined to turn the boos to cheers. And he seems to have made good.

"I WAS sorry to see Mello lose to Hudkins. I hope Al doesn't take his defeat to heart. It was a case of where he was over matched. He was taken along a little bit too fast. He shouldn't have tackled a bird as tough and rough as Hudkins without more ring schooling

"Mello certainly proved he has courage," Phil Glassman said to me as I left the Stadium. 'But he shouldn't have tossed in with Hudkins. The Wildcat knows too much for him. If Mello had waited six months to a year, it might have been a different story.

"As Mello is young, he will forget all about his defeat at the hands o. Hudkins within a few days. He then can start his climb towards the top all over again."

Ted Sullivan Father of Minor League Ball

Very few of the millions of baseball fans who flock to the parks to view the national pastime remember Ted Sullivan, one of the pioneers of the diamond sport.

Sullivan, old White Sox catcher, who is conducting the tour of the Kerry football team that plays at Braves Field on Saturday, is really the originator of minor league baseball. In the year 1879 he founded the first minor league at Rockford, Ill. The circuit was named the Northwestern League.

In 1885 he founded the Western League at Indianapolis. Sullivan took up headquarters in Kansas City and managed the circuit with great success.

Sullivan moved to the East and in the years of 1888 and 1889 he managed the Senators of Washington, D. C. In 1890 the National League stars commenced to ignore the reserve clauses in their contracts and a general revolt was staged in baseball circles.

The Washington club moved to Buffalo and Sullivan organized still another league in Baltimore known as the Atlantic League. Washington, Baltimore, Newark, Hartford, Worcester and New Haven were members of Ted's new association.

He founded the Southern League and then moved to Texas where he had interests in the Dallas team of the Texas League.

Sullivan was in charge of the New York Giants and the Chicago White Sox when they made their tour of the world in 1914.

In 1924 Sullivan was visiting Ireland and saw the Kerry football team in action in Dublin. The Kerrymen interested him so much that he arranged with Dick Fitzgerald, the "Red Grange" of the Emerald Isle, to take his team on a journey through the United States.

The Kerry team, champions of Ireland, will play in all the principal cities of the country. They have already played in New York and Springfield, and will play an All-Massachusetts team at Braves Field on Saturday.

GEORGETTI IN 40-MILE RACE

Franco Georgetti, Italian six-day cyclist, looks like the "find" of the year behind the motors, if his racing at the Revere cycle track, this season, is an example of his real ability.

The little fellow rode rings around Victor Hopkins, American champion, and came within one second of breaking the track record for 10 miles last Saturday night. Local bike fans have seen Georgetti push pedals in short distances. Next Saturday night they will see this new sensation over the 40-mile route.

Winning his first two starts at Revere was no mean feat, but the competition Georgetti will meet next Saturday night will be the stiffest he has yet encountered.

Inside Golf

The reason you firm up the right leg in the back swing is because you want to keep the hips from an action that otherwise can be entirely too free. The right hip moves back an inch or two, perhaps in a straight line, and all its action thereafter is back. It is very easy for the golfer to drop into the habit of letting the right hip move out too far, and especially is he likely to do that if he is consciously trying to get his weight over onto his right leg. (Fig. 1). If the hips move too much out and back during the swing they cannot produce shoulder-dipping.

SHARKEY TO FIGHT IN CHICAGO

Title Bout With Tunney Is Sought by Business Interests In West

New York, June 2.—Gene Tunney will defend his title as world's heavyweight champion against Jack Sharkey in Chicago, according to present indications.

The big business interests of Chicago want the Tunney-Sharkey match staged at Soldiers' Field early in September. It would be possible to handle a crowd of 150,000 persons at this park.

Tex Rickard told me today that he would leave for Chicago next Saturday and would go over the entire situation.

Rickard also stated that it is unlikely that Jack Dempsey will ever fight again.

"I shall have definite information on the Dempsey question within a few days," said Rickard. "If Dempsey comes back, I shall match him to meet Sharkey and pit the winner against Tunney. But the way things are shaping up now it doesn't appear as though Dempsey will ever fight again. In such an event I shall go right ahead and prepare my plans for a Sharkey-Tunney bout.

"I have been offered the use of Soldiers' Field, Chicago, for the championship event. I have also been told that I will be permitted to charge a top of $50 for ringside seats. This will mean that the show will draw more than $2,000,000.

"I cannot say at the best in New York if I am not allowed to charge more than $25 for ringside seats. With $25 as a top price in New York I could not get $1,000,000 into the Yankee Stadium. It would only pay the boxers and the landlord.

"Chicago is centrally located and would make an ideal spot for the championship bout."

If Jack gets into the Tunney-Sharkey title bout it will be a ten-round event, as that is the limit of boxing matches in Illinois.

Johnny Buckley and Sharkey are in New York. Mrs. Buckley is under Dr. William Fradick's hospital today for an operation.

Salmon Dishes Are Sure to Please the Family

TIME, they say, healeth all things—even the doughboys' dislike of army goldfish (in realms domestic known as canned salmon). I find that he no longer turns his nose up at a steaming salmon loaf or croquette, but once more appreciates, with the rest of us, the valuable member of the finny family.

Five species of salmon are canned including the Chinook or King Salmon—a mammoth fish weighing sometimes as much as 80 pounds. The smallest member of the salmon family is the pink salmon which averages about 5 pounds.

The salmon's life is interesting—spawning from 2 to 4 years. Some suicide has no place in the family, for each mother salmon lays about 3,000 eggs migrating up into the lakes and rivers. The little fish are fed in the fresh water before floating down stream to the sea.

Salmon is a particularly nourishing fish rich in body building elements and furnishing the body with a considerable quantity of lime, phosphorus and a trace of iron. As it comes under the classification of acid forming foods, it should be served with potatoes or other starchy vegetables which will neutralize the acid.

The best grades of canned salmon are as rich in body building nutrients and units as fresh salmon and of less. Any grade is easily digested and there is no waste—the only thing that is thrown away is the can.

A pound of salmon contains 51.45 per cent protein, such as steak 16.5 per cent, hens 14.50 per cent, mutton 13.40 per cent, eggs 13.10 per cent, young chicken 12 per cent, rice 8 per cent, and potatoes 1.80 per cent.

So you see the cheaper foods when we pick the right kind, are often quite as valuable as the choicer items.

A pound of red salmon can be bought for as little as 16c. Other varieties vary from 17c to 24c a pound can. Any of them are as digestible as the best sirloin steak and to their food value is added ease of preparation.

For real saving, it's well to buy cans of salmon by the dozen, particularly at special sales, when the saving is often twenty or thirty cents on a dozen cans.

Here are a few ways of preparing both canned and fresh salmon.

SALMON PIE—Mix two cups of flaked salmon with two cups of thick white sauce, add 2 cups of cooked diced potatoes, 1 cup cooked peas and 1 cup cooked carrots. Turn into a baking dish, cover with hot mashed potatoes, add the salmon mixture and smooth another layer of potatoes over the top. Sprinkle with grated cheese or dots of butter. Brown in the oven.

GREEN PEPPERS WITH SALMON STUFFING—Mix the salmon mixture the same as for salmon pie. Cut off the stem end of six green peppers, remove the seeds and stuff with the salmon mixture. Mix one cup of stale bread crumbs with a little oil and salt and cover over the tops of each pepper. Bake 20 to 30 minutes. Serve the peppers with tomato sauce.

Canned tomato soup makes an excellent emergency sauce.

SALMON SOUFFLE—2 cups flaked salmon, 1 pint soft bread crumbs, salt and pepper to taste, 2 cups thick white sauce, 1 tbsp. lemon juice, 1 teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce, 2 egg whites beaten stiff.

Mix the salmon and highly seasoned white sauce. Gently fold in the egg whites and pour into a casserole. Mix the crumbs with the oil, season them with salt and cover over the top. Bake in a hot oven 10 minutes. Serve with tartar sauce.

CURRIED SALMON WITH RICE—2 cups cold boiled salmon, 1 cup milk, 1 cup fish stock, ½ cup cream 2 tbsp. butter, 1 pint boiled rice, 2 tbsps. oil, 4 tbsps. flour, ½ tsp of curry powder.

Pack in a tin mold or cups with the cold boiled rice and heat on the stove in a pan of boiling water. Heat the oil in a sauce pan, stir in the flour and the curry powder and cook together. Add one cup of hot milk and one cup of hot fish stock all at once, stir until smooth. Season with salt and pepper and lemon juice. Add the cream, finely flaked salmon and butter. Unmold the rice in a ring on a hot platter and pour the curried salmon into the centre decorating with sliced hard boiled eggs and parsley.

BRAISED SALMON—2-lb. slice of salmon, 3 inches thick, 1 pint onions, chopped fine, 1 cup cream, 4 tbsps. flour, salt, pepper to taste, ¼ cup butter, ¼ cup oil.

Rub the slice of salmon with a cut onion, sprinkle with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Heat the oil in a frying pan and brown the salmon on both sides. Remove to a baking dish or skillet and add the onions and cook until tender but not brown. When the salmon is done, place on a platter and strain off the juice which there should be a cupful. If more than a cupful boil down. Sift the flour into it, add onions, mixing well together. Add the cup of stock and the cup of cream and season to taste and stir until very thick. Pour over the drained salmon and garnish with lemon slices and parsley.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE

Doctor Reed Tells of the Fight Against Scarlet Fever

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association

MEDICAL SCIENCE is constantly fighting to protect you and your children from the ravages of infectious diseases.

One of the most fatal of these diseases is scarlet fever and the battle against it has been long and hard but because we did not know the facts, the natural law, inherent in and pertaining to it.

In 1902 Miss Tunnicliff of Chicago showed that the organisms taken from scarlet fever patients formed a particular group, distinct from those taken from other sources, and that, while scientific patients possessed little resistance against the organisms of this particular stage of the disease, during convalescence, they had a greater resistance than normal people.

In 1914 it was discovered that the serum of convalescents would hasten the rash of scarlet fever in a horse when about the site of an injection of it into the skin.

From this result the work of two groups of investigators led rapidly to the solution of the riddle. The Eastern group consisted of Avery, Lancefield, Bliss, Sherman and Blake, and the Mid-Western group of Drs. George and Gladys Dick.

The Eastern group developed better methods for distinguishing between the different strains of the organisms and developed a specific serum for treating scarlatina patients and demonstrated its usefulness.

The Dicks, realizing that a great obstacle to the solution of the problem was the fact that experimental animals were not susceptible to scarlet fever, used humans for inoculation purposes. They were the first to show that the organism from scarlatina patients produced scarlatina when inoculated into susceptible persons. They isolated the toxin made by these streptococci and invented a skin test that would distinguish between susceptible persons and immune persons. They showed that injections of this toxin would confer immunity and that an antitoxin could be prepared from other animals and used for neutralizing the toxin that caused an acute attack of scarlet fever.

The organisms usually disappear very soon from the throat. If, however, they invade the follows in the tissues around the throat, or the middle ear, or the glands of the neck or other parts they may persist a long time. This may then become the source of infection with which a patient in contact with the cases may harbor these organisms in their throat then and afterward and show hardly any signs. These are called contact carriers.

There are two general plans of campaign against scarlet fever. The first includes measures taken to prevent the spread of the organism. In the second plan measures are taken to render susceptible persons immune.

The first method has failed to eradicate the disease, although it has been of some use in controlling epidemics.

By far the best method is, therefore, the second, which is based on the Dick test, which shows up those who are likely to contract the disease if they come in contact with it. The susceptible persons are thus rendered immune by the injection of graduated doses of the toxin. The first dose is not more than one hundred times the size of the dose employed for the skin test. The second does is two and a half times, and the third is about double the second.

The Dick process has been found reliable and efficient, but the chief difficulty is to measure accurately the strength of the toxin. At present it is only measured in terms of the amount that will produce a certain amount of reaction in a susceptible subject. It will be as great a task to apply these methods as it was to discover them. Preventive medicine in this particular is hampered by lack of educational publicity. What is needed is thorough and persistent advertising of the correct methods by medical societies through the popular press.

"Yes, I've been converted. It happened about two years ago. One of my friends noticed my red hands and tired look and asked me the reason. When I told her how housework fagged me out, she said, 'Try Rinso.' I did, and found that it was all she said it was. The wash never turned out as white and fresh-looking when I used harsh bar soaps or chips. Why, the clothes don't even have to be scrubbed when they come out of a soaking in the thick, fine Rinso suds—they're so clean. And as for dishwashing, and other cleaning around the house, why, there's nothing like Rinso!"

MRS. C. DUNHAM,
42 Anderson Street,
Boston, Mass.

Millions use Rinso. Thousands write us letters like this one.

Mrs. C. Dunham, 42 Anderson St., says:

Whiter than ever

yet this wash was neither scrubbed nor boiled

MOST women can't believe it until they see for themselves.

A whiter wash, a brighter wash. Not rubbed and scrubbed threadbare. Not even boiled. Just soaked and rinsed so gently!

Women are astonished when they use Rinso for the first time. It whitens without boiling—sterilizes, too! It actually soaks the wash brighter and cleaner than it could be scrubbed. The most soiled parts come snowy with just a touch between the fingers.

Thick suds in hardest water

Rinso, the granulated laundry soap, is different from anything you've ever used. It doesn't make frothy soap bubbles, but stirs into thick, creamy suds. It makes the water soapy all through—even the hardest water.

In these rich suds, dirt and stains float off so easily. All you need to do is rinse—for a whiter wash than ever! No need to ruin and age your hands by scrubbing.

Safe—and so economical!

Tests prove Rinso safe. Contains no acids or bleaches of any description.

And economical! It's all you need on washday—no bar soaps, chips or powders.

Try Rinso next washday for a whiter wash, in half the time, without scrubbing! For economy and best results, follow the easy directions on the package.

Fine in washing machines!

Rinso is so wonderful in washers that the makers of 30 leading machines endorse it for safety and for a brighter wash. Try it once and see! Get it today for your very next washday!

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Does a man or a woman go first up and down stairs?

2. In what position should a man walk while escorting two girls? Two men and a girl?

3. What kind of reply should a man make if a girl refuses him a dance?

L.

TO my way of thinking it is better form for a man never to precede a woman both in going up stairs and down stairs. This is always the custom in foreign countries and I am surprised that it is not more done in this country. Usually here it is the custom for the man to allow the girl to precede him upstairs and downstairs, but this seems to me unnecessary. If the man goes first he is in a position to protect a woman, especially on a stairway that is not too light or on a stairway that they both do not know well.

2. When a man is walking with two girls he walks on the side of the pavement nearest the curb. When two men are walking with one girl the girl walks in the center.

3. This is a difficult question, and the reply that a man makes to a girl who refuses to dance with him is especially puzzling since it is never correct for a girl to refuse to dance with a man unless he is intoxicated or for some other very desperate reason. "I'm sorry," is, I should think, about the only reply he could make.

A Startling Serial Story of Love, Terror and the Night Clubs

CHAPTER 60.

Pursuit, a fusillade of bullets, was not an impossibility. A passing taxicab, hailed on the run, offered sanctuary and escape. Sitting back in the machine, Tom Ware was conscious of an inexpressible relief, physical and mental. But, he reflected, the fight with Julius Lupino had solved nothing; indeed, it had perhaps complicated affairs. He had not put himself appreciably nearer his missing wife on this, their wedding night.

He contemplated the bruised knuckles on both his hands as the cab jolted along toward his address; he hadn't intended starting a fight with Lupino, but there was a solid satisfaction now in the realization that the man, so mysteriously connected with Jacqueline's disappearance, was for the present, at least, out of commission. The blow with the water carafe had been terrific, might have killed a man of more fragility than Lupino, and this was all to the good.

Back once more in his own apartment, Tom Ware studied the message inscribed on the back of one of Jacqueline's engraved cards. Rereading it, he sensed the depth of her perturbation. Only in a girl of a sensitive, artistic temperament could such a condition have been brought about; the ordinary, level-headed girl, no matter how severe her fight, would have taken the problem directly to her husband.

This clearly was a case of a strong suggestion being forced upon an imaginative mind, where it fermented and grew until it commanded the will power. Yet—and he was very positive of this—Jacqueline was in no way abnormal; she was merely high-strung as genius is a prerequisite to violin. Furthermore, few women in the course of a whole lifetime ever had to endure what she had gone through.

Soon, he knew, would be impossible for some time to come; he did not take the trouble to disrobe, but sat in the chair by the window automatically lighting cigarettes. An idea that had been borne in his mind earlier in the evening reoccurred to him with additional force, and he decided the first thing in the morning to put the case in the hands of the best private detectives to be had. Godfrey Dixon would know best how to proceed, perhaps.

The girl, May Desmond, he was sure held the key to the whole mystery, and—

"Brr . . . rrr . . . rrr! Brrr . . . rr . . . rrr!"

The telephone exploded into a boisterous clamor that shattered the quiet of the apartment . . . brought him to his feet with a bound, his heart suddenly thumping.

"Is that you, Mr. Ware?"

"Yes."

"This is May Desmond. Listen. Lupino's out!"

This might mean, immediately, serious complications—possibly peril.

"Peril?!"

"Not that bad, I guess, but he's out; still unconscious. Somebody said it was a concussion of the brain and they've taken him to the hospital. Mr. Ware—I—I—" The girl's voice shook and threatened to break. "I had to call you up, Mr. Ware. This thing's getting my goat and I can't stand to see Jacqueline get the deal that's being handed her. If Lupino wasn't in the hospital I wouldn't dare take a moment, but as long as I know he's out of the way temporarily I'm going to take a chance—and it's a bigger chance I'm taking than you realize. I'm going to tip you off where Jacqueline is."

"No matter what happens I'll stick by you," Tom Ware declared vigorously. "After this, I'll see you through, I promise. Where is she?"

"She's not in town, Mr. Ware. She's in a house near the beach out at Setauke. It's Lupino's place, but I've been living there this Summer."

"Give me the address!" Tom Ware demanded eagerly. "But wait. I've got a better idea. Where are you?"

"I'm in a drug store on Massachusetts avenue."

"Wait there. I'll be with you in fifteen minutes in my car. Can you drive out to Setauke with me tonight?"

"That's just what I was going to suggest, Mr. Ware. But hurry up and get me, for God's sake. You don't know what I've been through today. I'm just about shot to pieces."

"Hang on to your nerve," he told her tersely. "I'll be there in fifteen minutes at the outside."

On second thought, Tom decided not to waste time going to the garage for his own car, or having it sent around. It was quicker to take a taxicab, and fortunately he was able to command one immediately he reached the street.

May Desmond, when he met her was pale beneath the make-up on her face; despite his own excitement, he was moved sharply at the sight of the pert little figure so obviously wracked with strain and emotion. She came to him at once and put both of her hands in his own—hands that were like the paws of some tired little animal.

"Mr. Ware, God knows the trouble I've been through," she said, struggling to control a sob in her voice. "I know you thought I was a heartless thing in the Sea Shell tonight, but I've been afraid of my life for years with that man Lupino. If he ever finds out what I'm doing tonight he'll kill me sure. But there's got to be an end to all things some time . . ."

"There's going to be an end to Lupino before long," Tom Ware agreed. "Don't you worry, May. Well see you through—Jacqueline and I."

They took the taxicab to Tom's garage and changed there to his own grey roadster. Then, through the chilly, cool autumn night, the long swift ride, with the lights of Boston fading behind them.

The Love Slave

By Homer Banks

A NEW WORLD.—On Monday morning Corinne arrived at the stage door of the Knickerbocker Theatre. There were dozens of strange faces about her. She glanced around with amazement. Strange men spoke to her familiarly; others came to glare at her, as if inspecting a rare bore. Finally she was approved. "All right, you'll do," the stage man said. "Get in for rehearsal at two."

CORINNE MEETS FLUFFY.—After two hours of rehearsing, Corinne found herself standing before a long mirror. She was surrounded by dozens of girls. "All seeking the same thing," she thought. Suddenly a dainty brunette with brilliant red lips approached her. "You're Miss Lowell?" she asked. Corinne nodded. "Flash' Gross is waiting out in front," she said. "Thinks so much, he can't come. "Oh, you're welcome. We've got to be nice to each other in this game. She smiled winsomely at Corinne. "My name's Fluffy," she said

"FLASH" IS REBUFFED.—As Corinne turned from Fluffy, she was greeted by "Flash," who had come back-stage in search of her. "How did it go?" he asked, eagerly. Flushed and excited, Corinne answered him. "Pretty well, I think." "How about a nice little dinner with some wine tonight?" he asked, pressing her hand fondly. Corinne drew back. "I can't" she said. "Flash" appeared surprised. A faint shadow of anger flickered over his face. "What's the idea?" he said, gruffly. "Trying to hold out now? Well, I don't like it!"

FLUFFY'S ADVICE.—"Flash" turned abruptly and walked off. Corinne started after him, but suddenly found herself face to face with Fluffy. "Say, that wasn't so hot!" exclaimed Fluffy. "You're new at this game, aren't you? Let me wise you a. You can't pull that stuff with your agent for long and stick in the show business. You've got to play the game on Broadway. If you don't, kiddo, you're out!" Fluffy's crude philosophy filled Corinne with a sense of impending disaster.

going to get an interest in the firm, Ron."

"Will you marry Frank?" said Roen, shocked.

"Well, of course! We've been engaged all along, haven't we?"

Evelyn laughed uneasily. "Why Jimmie and we'll make it a double affair. You're only heading for the rocks if you stall any longer with Mike!"

"Is it so necessary to marry?" asked Roen, yet inwardly shaken. "I was necessary to do something—and quickly. This she knew.

This evening Jackie was home before her. He grinned and said: "Perch called me out today . . . Said I'd make the team—pretty sure, anyways."

She came over and stood shoulder to shoulder with him. Their eyes were on a level. Hers filled. Suddenly she flung her arm about him in her old, warm, hugging way: "I knew you would!"

More softly: "Did you tell Dearie?"

He shook his head emphatically. "No—and don't you, either."

"Why, how is she?"

"I don't know. She's been crying."

"Didn't you ask her why?"

"What's the use? I knew what she'd say."

"Oh, Jackie."

"Well—gosh, I don't like to stand there and have her rub my fingers and say: 'You won't have your mother with you always'—makes me feel as though I did something wrong . . ."

Roen bit her lips.

"Say, Roen!" He beckoned her with a toss of his head—waited till she tiptoed to his side. "Don't you catch it?" he whispered fervently.

"What do you mean?"

"Just that! Don't you catch it? Looks as though you're trying to get a last whirl. Say—waste the use? She likes to cry. You DON'T! And I'd like to see me hurt Mike the way you did when you talked to him on the phone the other night! I heard. Gosh—I wouldn't have done it for all the world, for anyone!"

"What did I do?"

"You said for him not to come. But I'd let her cry it out. That's what you better do!"

She flung back her head, laughing but he saw her blink as tears. He had been next, warm hand suddenly over hers. "Hon—gosh!—"

But she pushed easily now. "So better not catch it, Jackie—ha—"

"Gee—No! Not you, Ron!"

"All right—I won't!" She went rigidly—brimming with love and tenderness, to her mother's chair. It was amazing the power Jackie's opinion had with her.

And she loved him the more for his feeling of Michael.

She stopped and clustered Dearie's golden curls on her fingers. "Better today, sweet heart?"

"Um, yes—"

"Look!" She shook out a soft, delicate sweater woven of fairy floss. "To look like an angel, Dear?"

"Why do you do these things, Roan? You should be saving. I won't need a sweater like that."

"When won't you need it, Dearie? Why do you speak so?"

She means she won't need it when she goes out there! She thinks she's to leave us.

"You will need it, Dearie—you'll always need beautiful things. And you're going to have more and more."

Dearie lay with her eyes closed—smiling gently—tears pushing under her lashes.

"Take it back, Ronnie dear. Really, I don't want it."

"Dearie—you're not that cruel!" Her mother said humbly. "I'll never ask you for another thing—I'll never bother you—I'll just—go away. But you must let me do as I think. You must not blame me."

"What do you mean mother?"

"You will know. Ah, no dear. I am not going to do it to you." Tom—you will do it!"

To go means to tell me of her plan! She thanks they are going to take her!

The next day when Roen returned from work she found Dearie in the living room.

A half burned letter lay in the grate. Roen snatched it from the fire. It was the detail of Dearie's plan for dentures to the Mother Town Farm.

Dearie on the humming chair, her hands rested from her face. Roen spoke to her. She hadn't answered.

Roen leaned down and stooped for Dearie's arms, to pull her up.

For a moment of sadness to her, Roen thought her mother was dead. Then Dearie's hand went strongly to her lap. She opened, vacant, frightened eyes.

"A letter—I had a letter. Roen—give it—here."

"What are you talking about, Dearie? Did you dream?"

"Didn't I have a letter? In my hand? Suddenly her eyes went to the fireplace. She stood up, lurched with a short gasp. "I dreamed—yes!"

Roen lay awake for hours the night, aching and distracted. Her paths of escape presented themselves—even the offer of James Barton—

In a pitiful way the matter was taken from Roen's hands. Dearie became ill. The doctor said: "We should take your mother to the hospital. Don't delay this."

The long devotion of months began. Late in the afternoon Roen would lie with Dearie's head over her lap—she opened vacant, frightened eyes.

"Dearie, Roen!" He beckoned her with a toss of his head—waited till she tiptoed to his side. "Don't you catch it?" he whispered fervently.

FADS AND FASHIONS

SKELETONS at feasts are the proverbial "killjoys," but skeleton models at Summer sports will accompany the very smartest sports frocks, adding much to their wearers' pride and joy in being correctly shod. A pair to match each sports costume is fashion's decree, and they may be found, in kid or canvas, in the light colors that will be featured in every well-chosen wardrobe. So open are these models that nearly the entire foot is exposed by the slender network of oddly-shaped straps. Many of the best looking models are made with three different type heels, featuring slender spiked, Cuban and flat heels.

Sheer Frocks and Women's Hygiene

New way safer—discards like tissue

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND
Registered Nurse

THAT filmy gowns and women's oldest hygienic problem now go safely together is a fact millions of women are learning.

Old-time sanitary "pads" with their worries and dangers are giving way to the utter protection of a new way called Kotex.

✓ Kotex discards as easily as tissue. Thus no laundry, no embarrassment of disposal.

Five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton "pads," one may now dance, motor, go about for hours with a feeling of perfect security. Deodorizes; thus ending all fear of offense.

Obtain at any store without embarrassment simply by saying "Kotex." Box contains 12. Be sure you get the genuine. Only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex.

Advice to the Lovelorn

WAIT A WHILE.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am a young man of twenty years of age. I met a young girl six months ago, whom I love very much. What shall I do? I don't whether she loves me? She likes me her pointblank.

She lives in a nearby city. I go to see her once in a while. Usually she comes here and I take her out. Sometimes she is indifferent, other times she is more so now. I don't know how to tell me how to overcome the ference? A LOVER.

NO one can possibly feel in the same mood at all times. You, friend may be subject to this moods. If so, you may as well accept her as she is because she not likely to change in that respect. The only certain way to know whether she is in love with you is to ask her to marry you. As you are too young to undertake marriage responsibilities, we do you not contract yourself for year or two with devotion to her as a friend? If you marry her she will have a chance to love you. All success to you.

IS HE A DRUNKARD?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX.

I am hopelessly in love with a young man who also loves me. He works steadily and has a good home. I see him once in a while. He drinks.

Shall I give him up? It would break me heart to do so, but I can not stand it to see him drink. I value your advice regarding my problem.

BROKEN-HEARTED

DO you mean that your sweetheart drinks to excess, my dear? Does he become intoxicated?

This habit of drinking is not desirable in a husband. But many a man who merely takes a drink now and then is a good husband, devoted to his home.

However, the man you love is habitually a heavy drinker, your broken-hearted wives of drunkards marriage would not stand a chance of success. I am sorry to disappoint you, but I agree with you that you could not stand it to see him that way. Don't marry him until he has permanently reformed, proves it by going straight for at least two years. Otherwise, you are in the ranks of the Does illness keep you from your work?

A GIRL who earns her living—whether in store, office, factory or home—realizes the necessity of regular attendance at her place of employment. For this reason she works on day after day. When she becomes tired out and run-down, she feels that she must keep at her work without taking time to rest.

Thousands of girls have found that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored them to a normal physical condition, and has made them fit for work. These two women testify to that fact:

HEALTHY AND STRONG

Silverton, Oregon:— "I am writing to tell you how much your medicine has helped me. I was doing cannery work, canning, sealing, etc., but had to quit work when sick as I would be so weak I could hardly walk across the room. A friend of mine told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have found relief when sick and it helps me more each time. Every one says I am a healthier and stronger girl. I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to all my friends." Julia Schmidt, 113 Willow St., Silverton, Oregon.

LOOK AS YOUNG

Fruitdale, South Dakota:— "I felt badly. It seemed like my back broke all to pieces and I couldn't stoop down to get anything from the floor and then a friend told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. So I did, and it sure has helped me. I can work all day long and I feel so good. I am 50 years old and I look just as young as if I were 20. I am glad to answer letters from any one about this medicine because it has done me so good." Mrs. Frances F. Fejardo, Box 31, Fruitdale, South Dakota.

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE PROFESSOR'S FAVORITE

By Eudora Ramsay Richardson

All the [illegible] College [illegible] with [illegible] Professor [illegible] Phyllis Pinkham [illegible] the professor [illegible] to make [illegible] knew [illegible] as he [illegible] must be [illegible] Phyllis, of course. It always seemed safe to confide in Helena, for she never turned your confidences into a boomerang with which to floor you later. So Phyllis talked to her incessantly of Professor Henderson.

"I caught his eyes twice in class today," she effervesced one afternoon, when she and Helena were curled up on a lounge eating chocolates. "It was in American poetry. He was reading Rhodora, and his gray eyes were just like a squirrel's fur. 'If eyes are' made for seeing, then beauty is its own excuse for being.' When he finished reading that, he looked straight at me, why I almost turned up."

"Are you sure he was looking at you?" Helena inquired

Phyllis tossed her head disdainfully.

"There couldn't be any doubt," she declared. "All the girls noticed it. And isn't he the most romantic thing?"

"You used to say that last year about half a dozen of the 'F' boys."

Phyllis executed a sophisticated shrug.

"Ancient [illegible] sighed eloquently. 'I used to be young and foolish. College boys! It is a screen that I ever thought of them! Professor Henderson is a scholar. And that gray streak in his hair! Besides he looks deliciously young. Think of having a Ph.D. at his age. Do you suppose I'll have to graduate before he dares talk to me?"

"Try fainting in his class," suggested the helpful Helena.

Phyllis looked perplexed.

"That wouldn't do any good. He'd just send for the nurse. Of course if I could stage the act in front of his house, it would be different. I've passed there a million times looking for him, and I've never seen a soul but that disagreeable housekeeper of his."

Phyllis poised a chocolate in mid air and studied her room mate a minute.

"Helena, you aren't a bit boy crazy, are you?" she asked.

"Not exactly," Helena admitted. "But I'm going to the Dinsmore Anksgiving hop this year.

"Who's the man?"

"Nobody you know. Not him at a party last summer."

"One man girl—that's the baby Phyllis approved. "Last year I wouldn't have understood. Now I do."

Helena consulted her wrist watch and leaped to her feet.

"I must dress," she exclaimed. "Going out to dinner."

"Where?"

"Now Miss Curiosity," Helena teased.

"All right, I'll find out."

"No doubt you will," Helena smiled.

Next day every girl on the campus knew that Helena had dined the evening before at Professor Hendrickson's house. It had all been perfectly proper with the senate house keeper a chaperon. Phyllis however was furious.

"Such duplicity," she wailed to every single person she met. "Here I am, her own roommate telling her how wild I am about Professor Henderson, and Helena letting me rave and not breathing a word that she had ever spoken to him! "I'll not room with her another minute."

In fact, Phyllis was packing her things preparatory to immediate migration when the demure Helena walked in.

"What's all this?" the offender demanded.

"All this indeed" sniffed Phyllis in tearful rage "Don't you ever speak to me again—you snake in the grass, having a clandestine affair with the man you know I love!"

"I'm sorry, Phyllis," Helena began humbly. "I was only teasing you a little. I meant to explain."

"Explain," stormed Phyllis, "I wouldn't listen to an explanation if you were on your death bed."

Whereupon Phyllis banged out of the room, leaving Helena raging in the middle of the floor.

During the weeks that followed, Phyllis' best friends offered effusive but ineffectual consolation.

"Don't you know," Dot Mason argued, "that a man has a right to choose his own girl? Professor Henderson, with those eyes and that lazy smile, could have had any one of us, but he couldn't take the whole college."

"But he did look at me whenever he read poetry," Phyllis persisted, "and that angel-faced little devil resorted to underhand means to get him. Besides, I believe she's just stringing him."

"Surely the man's old enough to look after himself," Dot maintained.

"No man ever is. The idea of her getting letters every day from the boy at Dinsmore! I know because we still share the same mail box."

As Thanksgiving approached Phyllis became more hopeful. The professor would surely learn of Helena's going to the hop, and a man of his age and position would stand for no trifling.

While Helena was gone, Phyllis managed to keep rather a close eye upon the professor. That scholarly gentleman undoubtedly wore a harassed expression. Poor fellow—inscrutable, romantic, deep-souled. How Phyllis longed to save him from suffering!

Toward dusk of the day of Helena's expected return, Dot blew into Phyllis' room like a cyclone.

"Helena's come back," she announced, "and she's brought that boy with her. They want a ride to Professor Henderson's house."

"Then she's married 'him,'" was Phyllis' vocalized wish.

"They're on the porch," Dot rattled on. "It's almost dark. Let's stroll down that way and see what we can hear."

Across the campus the two girls sped, excitedly. Toward a clump of bushes near the professorial porch they crept cautiously. Voices came clearly through the stillness of the night.

"Please don't be too hard on Jack," Helena was pleading.

"Aw, Dad, be human. You were young once."

"Young perhaps, but not an idiot," the professor replied sternly

"Just one more trial," Helena begged.

"Well, one more then. Of course son, you're—all—I have and I'm inordinately fond of you."

The voice was deep and husky and terribly paternal.

Phyllis pulled Dot away and led her gloomily toward the dormitories.

"Romantic oh, Lord!" she moaned. "He's just somebody a Dad calling down a poor fellow who's got into a scrape. He sounded just like my Dad—"

"And mine," echoed Dot.

"Why didn't I let Helena explain? She wanted to tell me that her Dinsmore date was with Professor Henderson's son, and I shut her up. Well, thank heaven, I'm cured."

"Me, too," Dot added—and the girls held each other while they rocked with laughter.

BE FAIR AND CHARITABLE; CUT OUT SCANDAL

Are you not too willing to believe complimentary reports about your acquaintances, your friends and your neighbors?

Isn't it easy for you to use your imagination considerable leeway, and from things you know, draw evidence of proof of the ill reports you hear?

Unless the person about whom you hear a bit of scandal is a very good friend of yours, do you do anything to stop the rumors by voicing a conviction that you don't believe it?

No, there is something about scandal that fascinates you.

Even if you disbelieve the stories you enjoy telling them and adding perhaps that you don't believe them, of course!

This half admission, coming from you, gives encouragement to scandalmongers, who go on circulating the reports.

There would be less sorrow and fewer despondent persons in the world if every person who heard derogatory reports attempted to stop them.

Why not be more charitable and fair?

Have you not done many things yourself that might be used against you?

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

CALLED my Old Love back to me.
He came without delay—
But, oh I bid you, never take
The Road to Yesterday!

I called my Old Love back to me!
But was his kiss the same?
Or in his eyes the old delight?
Or in his heart the flame?

We searched so long, we went so far—
Alas, we lost the way!
My Love and I, we could not FIND
The Road to Yesterday!

To most men, serving as "best man" at a wedding is as painful as serving on a jury; they tremble at the fear of condemning an innocent man!

Some men are completely domesticated after a few weeks of marriage, as any other household pet; others can never be home-broken, no matter how long or how often they are married.

* * *

When a woman closes her eyes a man merely suspects that she is bored or weary; but when she closes her MOUTH, he knows that she's "wise"—and the game is up!

Woman-Stuff

Men will make you suffer;
Men will make you sigh!
You'll believe each bluffer,
And every alibi.
You'll pretend to trust them,
When you know they lie!
You can live without them?
Well—my dear—just TRY!
You are just a woman —
So, alas, am I!

MEDBURY SAYS---

HUNDREDS of night clubs in New York City, have gone out of business. A fool and his money are soon parted, but they had a hard time finding enough fools.

FOR a while it looked as though there were more saps in New York than there were trees.

THESE night clubs accomplished one thing though, they took most of our burglars off the streets and put them in dress suits.

JIMMIES are all right, but it's easier to rob the public with pencils.

THESE fellows would make Jessie James and his bandits look like the Salvation Army.

ONE woman in Chicago killed her husband for being a common thug. She said he had no ambition.

HOLDING up people in dark alleys is a crime. She wanted him to open a night club and do it in a legal way.

ONE place used to charge so much for liquor that even the prohibition officers couldn't afford to go there.

A FELLOW went in there the other night with fifteen bucks and they wouldn't even let him smell the cork.

ALL he got for his money was two bottles of ginger ale and a dirty look.

WHEN he tried to buy a glass of gin they told him he'd have to bring a card from a Revenue agent.

THEY explained to him that they had too much trouble selling to people who weren't connected with the prohibition department.

BESIDES, they only had three cases left and they were saving it for the anti-saloon league.

THE few night clubs that remain open, are bound to close. Why should a man pay a waiter two dollars for a glass of poison, when for thirty-five cents he can commit suicide at home?

DIVIDENDS RUN AHEAD OF 1926

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, June 2.—Dividend payments reflect national prosperity.

During May 68 improved dividend disbursements were announced. This compares with 54 in year 1926, 42 in 1925 and 39 in 1924.

For the first five months of this year the grand total is 391, compared with 375 last year, 290 two years ago, and 278 in 1924.

Last month 12 companies took unfavorable dividend action, the smallest total for any month this year.

B. C. Forbes

THIS TABLE shows the nature of the improved dividends announced last month by industrial, public utility and railway companies:

	Ind.	Pf.	R.R.
Extra	7	1
Stock	12	1
Increased	4	1
Resumed	4
Decreased	2	1
Passed	3	2

RAILROADS are beginning to figure as little more prominently in dividend news. Last month Chesapeake & Ohio raised its rate from 8 to 10 per cent, a year. Hocking Valley took similar action. Pere Marquette announced a 5% stock dividend, subject to the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Atlantic Coast Line directors declared 3 per cent. extra on both its common and preferred issues.

However, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio and other leading systems have not yet taken similar action, standing that Wall street has been confidently predicting more generous treatment of stockholders. Meanwhile the present quotations for not a few of our most prominent railway stocks have been regarded as such on the theory that larger disbursements are sure to be made. Most—though not all—of Wall street's expectations should be fulfilled.

General Motors, Eastman Kodak, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Dupont De Nemours and General Electric are among the mammoth industrial companies figuring 7 per cent. extra. General Motors will have distributed among its stockholders fully $250,000,000 altogether. The Dupont company has paid fully $170,000,000 since 1917. Standard Oil of New Jersey since 1919 has made its stockholders richer by $350,000,000. Large sum have been distributed to begin to compare with the Pennsylvania Railroad's unique record in its 80 years of uninterrupted cash dividends it has distributed fully $831,000,000.

Whichever way you look, we continue cheerful during coming months remains to be seen.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defense.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

Complaint Dismissed

Marion, Gertrude, "Slim" and the Two Georges Take the Witness Stand for YOUTH

CHARLES A. LINDBERGH GEORGE SOUDERS

It probably is too much to expect that those who find their greatest joy in weeping over the alleged shortcomings of Youth will give up without a struggle, but enough has happened of late to encourage the thought that it won't be long before the blubberers have passed out along with torchlight parades, tin pedlars and buggy riding.

Consider a brief but impressive list, to which every reader may add a name or two:

MARION TALLEY, Kansas City's songbird, who at 18 found a place with the Metropolitan Opera Company and became America's youngest prima donna.

GERTRUDE EDERLE of New York, who at the age of 19 swam the English Channel in 14 hours and 31 minutes.

GEORGE YOUNG of Toronto, 17, who won the $25,000 William Wrigley, Jr., prize for swimming 22 miles from Santa Catalina Isthmus to Point Vincent, Calif.

CHARLES A. LINDBERGH, whose heroic achievement has been acclaimed the world over.

GEORGE SOUDERS, Lafayette, Ind., who entered his first big automobile race at Indianapolis on Memorial Day, maintained an average speed of 97.54 miles an hour over a 500-mile course, and won approximately $30,000 in prizes.

Fine, clean young persons all!

Youths and maidens such as towns and cities like to claim for their own.

Boys and girls to make glad the hearts of fathers and mothers.

Books come true; heroes and heroines such as never used to be found except between the pages of stories for boys and girls.

Exceptional cases? Well, no more so than the young folks who have made the first pages within the same number of months by being dismissed from college.

THE FACT IS THAT THIS YOUNGER GENERATION ROUND ABOUT US IS THE FINEST AND THE CLEANEST AND THE BEST THE WORLD HAS YET TURNED OUT.

For further evidence look about you, not merely in your own city or town, but in your immediate neighborhood.

For one boy over whom the neighbors shake their heads there are fifteen or twenty going straight and true.

For every "silly goose" there are FIFTY girls of the other sort.

The month which witnesses the addition of hundreds of new names to the roster of nurses in our hospitals, which sees regiments of young men entering upon the practice of medicine, and more regiments of young people rejecting the allurements of trade to take up the as yet inadequately paid work of the teacher, seems a propitious time to implore the groaners and grumblers and crepe-hangers to cease, desist, forbear, leave off and LAY OFF.

A Dreadful Warning to Fathers and Mothers

Teach Your Children TO AVOID STRANGERS

A dreadful death of a little 12-year-old New York girl, Yetta Abramowitz, should be a warning to parents, a reminder of their RESPONSIBILITY.

TEACH YOUR YOUNG CHILDREN NOT TO TALK OR GO WITH STRANGERS. Strangers have no business talking with children they do not know.

Such acquaintance is always unnecessary, often dangerous.

WARN YOUR CHILDREN.

The poor, unfortunately, cannot do for their children all that they would like to do, BUT THEY CAN ADVISE THEM.

While your children are little WARN them to stay with those that they know, not to let themselves be led away by strangers, not to speak with strangers in moving picture houses, or elsewhere.

REPETITION, constantly repeating the same warning, will impress the child's mind.

It is not necessary to fill the child with FEAR or necessary to talk of the horrible death of this unfortunate Abramowitz child. To do so would be wicked, frightening children means dwarfing their minds. Children can be told that it is wrong, disobedient and "bad manners" to go with strangers.

Teach them that the stranger that speaks to them, or invites them to "go and buy candy," is impolite, one to be avoided.

BISCUIT CUTTER CIVILIZATION

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE charge is brought against America that it represents a biscuit cutter civilization.

That is, that goods which are manufactured, as well as the minds of people generally, are in a set form. There is too much unanimity and sameness about life and not enough individualism.

Well, the biscuit cutter idea has something to be said in its favor. It means standardization of products. It means that parts shall be made by machinery and shall be of an interchangeable nature. Almost all the regulation in price and the enormous product of our concerns have been due to the elimination of waste and expense by standardization.

In newspaper columns it is said that in five years the industrial output has increased 40 per cent. One manufacturer says: "One man working steadily for 8 hours used to turn out 60 pieces an hour, or 480 a day. He got $65 a week. Then we put in machines. We have 30 men on the job and we put out 14,000 pieces a day."

This story has been multiplied by many.

Cotton seed, once a waste product, has been used in many ways. In Wisconsin they are making paper from peat. Because of this standardization and our immensely increased products we have become the wealthiest nation in the world. We are producing not only surplus cotton and wheat, but surplus industrial products and we have a surplus of money.

We are richer than ever was a nation before.

We own 20,000,000 motor cars, millions of homes, and we travel and live luxuriously.

Arthur D. Welton, in a magazine article, says that it is estimated that the earnings of American corporations for 1926 exceed seven billion dollars.

Savings deposits in banks are twice as much as they were twenty years ago.

We are supplying the world with capital. New York has effectively challenged the financial leadership of London. Our people now hold bonds to the extent of six billion dollars and the foreign indebtedness to the United States is now in excess of sixteen billion dollars.

Mr. Welton says: "The fact is that America is not only the richest country in the world, but richer than any country ever was before, and it is destined to become still richer."

The biscuit cutter civilization, reduced to its lowest terms, simply means that our people have learned to co-operate and to save waste as well as utilize the forces of nature. So, after all, the biscuit cutter civilization has something to be said in its favor.

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

HONOR

THE NEWTON POLICE DEPARTMENT may now boast of numbering among its members a priest, in the person of REV. CHARLES H. BRYSON, who was ordained in May at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, Boston. REV. FR. BRYSON served as a temporary patrolman for several Summers and, although he has not been engaged in active police work for about six years, he is still technically a member of the reserve force, for there is said to be no record of his resignation.

PROMOTION.

The resignation of ASSOCIATE JUSTICE E. LEROY SWEETSER from the Malden District Court advances JUDGE THOMAS P. RILEY, former chairman of the Democratic State Committee, to senior associate and the new appointee, EX-MAYOR H. HEUSTIS NEWTON of Everett and one of Everett's most popular residents, becomes junior associate. The court handles business from Malden, Everett, Medford, Melrose and Wakefield.

HAT.

Liquor runners who don't want to make the acquaintance of PATROLMAN OLIVER B. GARRETT of the Headquarters Enforcement Unit can readily identify their foe even though they never before saw him. "Ollie" is one of the few Bostonians who are strutting about the streets nowadays in a straw "Benjamin." He is one of the boys who bought early and who believes in showing his colors. It's a Panama.

BUSY.

The business of being a mayor is by no means a sinecure, especially in a fast growing city such as Medford. MAYOR EDWARD H. LARKIN has been on the job as mayor from eight in the morning until midnight daily since his taking office the first Monday in January and yet finds the days all too short to accomplish all of the work laid out.

COURTEOUS.

There is one office, at least, in this State where courtesy is ever the watchword. JOHN CORCORAN, one of those who preside behind the counter at the Middlesex Registry of Deeds, never fails to make a good impression when persons unfamiliar with the workings of the land court seek information relative to such matters as mortgages, titles, etc.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

LADY ASTOR is waging another lusty fight over in England. She is fighting for the rights of the married woman worker.

She believes that the right to work is an inalienable human privilege which belongs to the married woman quite as much as to the single girl. And she advanced the well-known argument that the married woman is a steadier, more reliable worker than the unattached girl whose head is filled with romance.

Mr. X. doesn't agree with that theory. Mr. X. is a prominent business man of this town who employs hundreds of women clerks. For obvious reasons he doesn't want his name quoted.

"I have had years of experience in testing out that theory," he says, "and it doesn't work. We all know that the married man worker is more reliable than the single boy—that he'll stick harder to his job, do more conscientious work and take less advantage of his employer. Naturally, one would suppose that the same thing would be true of the married woman worker. She, too, is working for her home and you'd suppose she would be willing to sacrifice for it, just as her husband does. But it doesn't follow.

"Take the average young married woman of today. She's probably somewhere between twenty-one and thirty years of age. When she first marries, the young husband isn't earning enough to support two. So the girl decides to hold her job for a few years until they get started. Theoretically, the added responsibility should increase her enthusiasm and loyalty to the firm, but it doesn't.

"From the day she marries she feels that she has someone who will look out for her if she loses her position. Of course, she knows that she will need work at some job for some years but, with a husband behind her, she is no longer forced to stay on the same job. Young women have as great a longing for change and variety as young men, and given someone to ride them for a period of idleness, they will be just as willing to walk out of a job.

"The feeling that she has a husband behind her also affects her in another way which is even more disastrous for business. She will no longer submit to any irksome discipline. She openly boasts 'I don't have to stand for it if I don't like' and then proceeds to make good her boast by being tardy and negligent and doing a lot of things which she wouldn't dare to do if she were a single girl, facing hardship if she lost her job.

"The other girls see this, of course, and resent it. That type of woman worker—and it is by far the commonest type—can make a whole store of clerks rebellious and rude.

"Of course, there are many splendid married women workers—widows or women with invalid husbands or little children, who are of great value and absolutely dependable. But the vast majority of married women workers are youngsters who are still irresponsible and who are rendered even more foot-free and unmanageable by the advantage of their marriage.

"So my conclusion is that while marriage may improve the condition of the woman worker it certainly raises Cain with industry, and I, for one, want unmarried employes."

That's another angle of the case which would doubtless rouse Nancy Astor's ire. How do you feel about it?

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

WE wonder at them, looking back through years and seeking thus to pierce the mists of time, as one who lifts a heavy veil and peers into the strangeness of an alien clime. We glimpse them dimly on their primal heights and note the majesty with which they moved; what were their fears, their ardors, their delights, what were their joys of life, their dreams of love? We wonder at them, they who dwelt of old upon the planet we inhabit now those ancients and with ruthless hands and bold invade their tombs brave death's most awful vow. And yet we need not search afar to learn their deeds and dreams, their purpose and their pain, for we with all their old desires burn, in us their loves and hates revive again.
